POST-GATTY PLANE SPEEDS ACROSS THE PRAIRIES

City and Suburban School Pass Lists Issued

Glorious Weather Greets Start of Summer Holidays

End of School Year Releases 9,000 Children in Greater Victoria Area From Studies; Will Have Exactly Two Months of Vacation, Returning To School On September 1.

Nine thousand children in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt cast aside their books to-day and made ready to enjoy the summer holiday, which lasts until September 1.

After two weeks of uncertain weather, the dawn broke almost cloudless and the weatherman held out promise of a glorious start for the kiddies on vacation.

Pass lists in practically all the grade schools of the four municipalities are contained in the pages of The Times to-night. The results in most instances show a high standard of training in all schools and several pupils did exceptionally well in their work during the year.

This year the students have the shortest summer holiday they have had in years. Instead of finishing on the last Friday in June, they have attended school until the final day of the month, closing exercises having been held this morning. They will be back in school a whole week before Labor Day this year, instead of waiting until after that holiday before returning.

Following are the pass lists:

CENSUS WILL SHOW GAIN IN POPULATION

Increase Will Be Slight, Says Commissioner W. G. Gaunce With Work Near Completion

When the final count of the census enumerators has been tabulated it is confidently anticipated that the population of the City of Victoria will show an increase over the census figure of a decade ago. This was the opinion expressed by William G. Gaunce, census commissioner, when approached regarding an estimate of the census which is now being brought to a close.

"We are practically through, but no announcement will be made concerning the population of the city until the records have been considered by the department at Ottawa," said Mr. Gaunce.

"The work of the enumerators has been slow, but, with the exception of Chinatown, most of the returns are in.

"I am not prepared to say at this time what the population of the city is, but it would be reasonable to fig-

Texas Fliers Start Journey To the Orient

R. L. Robbins and H. S. Jones Bound For Seattle; to Japan By Way of Alaska Fields

Plan Refueling Stops; Hope to Win Japanese Paper's $25,000 Prize

Canadian Press

Fort Worth, Texas, June 30.—Reg. L. Robbins, bound for Tokio in quest of the $25,000 prize offered by the Japanese newspaper Asahi for the first non-stop transpacific flight, lifted his plane the Fort Worth, from the airport here at 4.50 a.m. to-day, en route to Seattle. Accompanying him as navigator was H. S. Jones, oil man and sportsman aviator.

TO FAIRBANKS

Robbins expected to reach Seattle late to-day and there give his plane a final inspection before attempting the fifty-five-hour flight estimated as necessary for the hop by way of Fairbanks, Alaska.

Soon after Robbins's departure, a tri-motored refueling plane, manned by Jimmy Mattern and Nick Greene, followed. The refueling ship was expected to fly to-day to Bismarck, N.D., for an overnight stop, then proceed directly to Fairbanks to await the arrival of Robbins and Jones. Mattern expected to reach Fairbanks in fifteen hours.

TO REFUEL AT NOME

It was planned to refuel the transpacific plane at Fairbanks and Nome, the refueling ship escorting Robbins and Jones as far as Nome.

The cockpit of the Lockheed-Vega plane piloted by Robbins would accommodate only one person, but Jones planned to relieve Robbins at the controls by crawling over the 700-gallon gasoline tank and through a small doorway. When he was not flying, Jones said he would occupy a small compartment at the rear. A small desk was fitted there for his maps and charts. In that position, he also expected to handle the hose during refueling contacts, by means of a doorway cut in the cabin ceiling.

BACK RENEWAL OF APPEAL FOR SEAPLANE BASE

Urging the City Council to renew its appeal for foreshore rights in Victoria Harbor for the seaplane base planned some time ago by Edward Lowe, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday afternoon decided to give the council every possible backing. The action was the outcome of a motion by R. H. B. Ker.

Mr. Ker stated that since the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways had given their backing to the Western Canada Airways Limited, a concern in which they were financially interested, he saw no reason why they should oppose the establishment of another base in the harbor. The policy of the transportation companies in supporting the new airways was directly opposite to the stand they had taken on the matter of seaplane landing in the harbor a month ago, he stated.

If foreshore rights were secured, Mr. Lowe was prepared to go ahead with his original plan for the establishment of a base here, Mr. Ker informed the gathering.

He remarked that if the transportation companies continued to voice their opposition, it would be fairly evident they considered "might was right."

Mr. Ker also noted that Mr. Lowe proposed to make a permanent base here, whereas the concern backed by the C.P.R. and S.N.R. would have headquarters in Vancouver and would use Victoria merely as a stopping place.

Blaze Speed Trail Around World

Musical Festival Here Next Year To Open April 4

Will Be First Festival in Canada; Conference of Officials of Western Festivals Here Decides To Invite Four British Adjudicators, Including Harold Samuel, Who Officiated Here Last Month.

Harold Samuel, London, the master British pianist, whose adjudicating and playing during the recent Victoria musical festival won for him a large following, will again be present at next year's local festival, it was announced to-day at the conference of Provincial Musical Festivals, which has been in session at the Empress Hotel for two days. Delegates are here from the four western provinces.

The dates for Victoria's next festival will be from April 4 to 8 inclusive. It will be the first festival of the season in Canada.

Accompanying Mr. Samuel to Canada from the Old Country will be three other British music authorities, two of whom have already been chosen. Dr. Armstrong, of Exeter, will look after choral work and will occupy the leading position that Sir Hugh Roberton, Glasgow, held at the last festival. Dr. Armstrong is famed throughout Great Britain for his fine adjudications of choral work.

ENGLISH JUDGE FOR STRINGS

In place of Frank Eichenlaub, Portland, Ore., adjudicator of strings at the last festival, will be Maurice Jacobson, London, who will look after orchestras as well, and assist with piano.

THREE BY-LAWS SNOWED UNDER

Property Owners Give Decisive Answer on Airport and Street Work Plans

Airport Loses Ten to One; Vote Indicates Desire For Civic Economy

Opposition of property owners in Victoria to any large expense of money on public works at the present time was expressed in no uncertain terms at the polls when three money by-laws, for an aggregate expenditure of $314,000, were defeated by huge margins.

The three measures and the voting were:

Gordon Head airport by-law, for borrowing $240,000; for, 332; against, 3,247.

Wharf Street repaving and Johnson Street extension completion by-law; for borrowing $23,000; for, 741; against, 2,830.

Majorities of three-fifths would have been required to pass the by-laws so the defeat was nothing short of a landslide.

Two World Speed Fliers Arrived At Edmonton Airfield This Afternoon

Post-Gatty Plane Sighted Passing High Prairie, Alta., Bound for Edmonton, Eighty Miles Away, On Dash From Fairbanks, Alaska; Daring Fliers Ahead Of Schedule They Set When They Left New York Last Tuesday.

Canadian Press

Edmonton, June 30—The Post-Gatty plane landed here at 4.35 o'clock this afternoon (3.35 Victoria time).

Canadian Press

Edmonton, June 30. — The Post-Gatty plane passed High Prairie, eighty miles north of Edmonton at 3.15 this afternoon M.S.T. (2.15 p.m. Victoria time).

Edmonton, June 30—The Winnie Mae, round-the-world plane, was sighted over Fairview, Alta., 370 miles northwest of Edmonton, at 2.30 p.m., M.S.T., to-day (1.30 p.m. Victoria time), according to word received here.

New York, June 30.—The National Broadcasting Company was informed late to-day that the Wiley Post and Harold Gatty plane had been sighted at Whitehorse, Yukon, at 9 a.m. Yukon time (8 a.m. Victoria time), flying southward. They were expected to reach Edmonton at 2 p.m. (1 p.m. Victoria time), if they kept up their speed.

Whitehorse, Yukon, June 30. — A plane believed to be that of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty passed over Carmacks, 110 miles north of here, at 7.15 this morning. It was almost certain it was the ship of the world fliers, as neither of the Treadwell-Yukon Company's planes was in that vicinity at the time.

The plane was flying south.

DEPARTURE FROM FAIRBANKS

Fairbanks, Alaska, June 30.—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty lifted their monoplane, the Winnie Mae, into the air here at 3.24 a.m. to-day (5.24 a.m. Victoria time) for a 1,450-mile hop to Edmonton, Alberta, after an all-night stop here on their globe-circling speed flight.

New Three-cent Postal Rate in Force July 1

Two-cent Stamp Tax on All Cheques Also Begins To-morrow; Other Increases

Income Tax Amendments and Higher Postal Rate on Newspapers July 1

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 30.—A number of taxation features incorporated in the Budget brought down by Premier Bennett in his capacity as Minister of Finance at the beginning of the present month will come into operation July 1. Of these the one that has most widespread effect is the increase in the postal rates. Two-cent postage disappears, except only in respect of drop letters—that is, letters delivered in the town in which they are mailed. An additional cent was imposed in the Budget on "out-of-town" letters, so that henceforth the minimum rate for these, starting to-morrow, will be three cents.

The stamp tax of two cents on all cheques, irrespective of their value, also will become effective on Dominion Day. Previously the tax applied only to cheques issued for over $10.

INCOME TAX

Provisions of the income tax amendments, with the sole exception of that relating to the two per cent. payable by Canadian corporations in the case of non-resident shareholders, will become operative July 1.

These amendments increase exemptions from $3,000 to $3,500 for married persons; repeal provisions relating to family and personal corporations, exempt from taxation (up to $10,000) the net dividends derived from Canadian companies to the extent of one-half of the taxable income of a taxpayer, and apply the sliding scale of rates from one to twenty-five per cent. on each $1,000 of taxable incomes from $1,000 up to and exceeding $25,000.

NEWSPAPER RATE

The increased postal rate on newspapers and other publications will be effective July 1. This provides for an increase from one cent to one and one half cents a pound on daily newspapers and other publications issued more frequently than once a week, when those newspapers have a circulation of more than 10,000. Exemptions are made in respect to publications devoted to religion, the sciences and agriculture, on which the one cent rate is retained.

The tax of fifteen cents a pound on imported magazines has been postponed until August 15.

PLAN TO AID MARRIED MEN

Citizens' Unemployment Relief Fund Would Provide More Work

Organization of the Victoria Citizens' Unemployment Relief Fund was discussed further at a meeting of the committee in charge this morning in the City Council chamber.

Mayor Anscomb announced after the meeting that the fund would be used to provide additional relief work for married men who are on the unemployed list. Under the civic system of relief it is possible to give work to these men for only a portion of the month, and with the help of the fund, it is planned to extend the amount of work given each man.

Another meeting of the committee will be held on Friday.

Those who attended the meeting this morning besides the mayor were: Sir Frank Barnard, R. P. Butchart, C. F Todd, Capt. W. H. Molson, Alderman J. L. Mara, R. H. B. Ker, J. P. Babcock, F. E. Winslow, E. W. McMullen, P. B Fowler, G. H. Stevens, H. Nation, H. E Beasley, Fred Landsberg and J. H Fletcher.

Bennett Tariff Board to End With His Cabinet

King Gives Warning Commons Will Not Vote Funds After Next Change in Administration, Despite Ten-year Term Bill

This is Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King's description of the tariff board the Bennett government is asking Parliament to create.

Protesting Premier Bennett's plan of a ten-year term for the members of the board, Mr. King gives warning that if a Liberal administration should ever find itself burdened with a hang-over high protection board it would not hesitate to stop the salaries of the commissioners appointed by the preceding Conservative government.

It would not dismiss them from office, he told the Commons yesterday afternoon, but any government might withhold the salaries of any commissioners in whom it did not have complete confidence.

Another resignation was that of Prof. W. E. Duckering, head of the department of civil engineering of the faculty of applied science. He has been on leave of absence for one year owing to ill health.

Dean R. W. Brock, head of the department of applied science, was delegated to attend the Conference of the Universities of the British Empire at London this summer.

FINE WEATHER FORECAST AFTER RECORD RAINFALL

Sunny Warm Days to Follow Downpour, Says Weatherman

Temperature and Sunshine Figures Not Over Usual; Prairies Deluged

After breaking all previous records in Victoria for rainfall in the month of June by a wide margin, the area of low atmospheric pressure moved eastward to the prairies, drenching them in heavy downpours and leaving Victoria with every prospect of fine and warm weather for Dominion Day and the week-end, F. Napier Denison of the Gonzales Hill Observatory announced in his monthly report this morning.

Since the first entry in the weather annals at the Meteorological Observatory in 1874, June has never approximated the mark of 4.33 inches set this year. The closest the month has come to this record since that date was 2.37 inches in 1894.

Sydney, N.S.W., June 30.—Following rejection yesterday of Premier J. T. Lang's emergency income tax bill by the Legislative Council of New South Wales, the government has decided to impose again the five per cent unemployment tax and the Public Service Salaries Reduction Act, measures which would have been automatically abolished this evening.

On behalf of the opposition, Hon. B. S. B. Stevenes, formerly Colonial Treasurer, assured the government there would be no obstruction to keeping the state financially solvent by the re-enactment of these measures.

Supreme Court Decides Dominion Controls Radio

Three Judges Declare in Favor of Full Federal Jurisdiction; Two Say Provinces Should Share in Control

Ottawa, June 30.—Control of radio broadcasting in Canada belongs to the Dominion Parliament and not to the provincial legislatures. This was the decision of a majority of the judges of the Supreme Court of Canada on the radio reference handed down to-day.

The court was not unanimous. Chief Justice F. A. Anglin, Mr. Justice R. Smith and Mr. Justice E. L. Newcombe ruled in favor of the Dominion's claim to full jurisdiction over radio on the ground, as the Chief Justice puts it, of "convenience amounting to necessity."

In dissenting judgments, Mr. Justice T. Rinfret and Mr. Justice J. H. Lamont held the jurisdiction of the Dominion was not unlimited and took the stand the provinces were entitled to a measure of control, particularly over radio receiving apparatus.

B.N.A. ACT INVOLVED

The case, one of the most important heard by the Supreme Court in some time, turned on the construction of the British North America Act. It was brought about by the action of the province of Quebec, which contested

Company Asks Federal Approval For Structure at Port Mann

New Westminster, June 30.—Federal Government sanction is being sought by W. C. Ditmars and the Cameron Construction Company of plans for a bridge across the Fraser River at Port Mann, just above New Westminster.

The proposal involves erection of a bridge costing between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. The structure would be a double-deck railway and toll highway bridge.

The promoters are negotiating to have the Canadian National Railways use the bridge for bringing its trains across the Fraser.

If this venture is carried through the bridge will be operated as a private concern, and at the end of twenty years it will be handed over to the provincial government.

The 1931 record for the month stands 3.56 inches above the average and swells the excess rain to 4.79 inches above the usual since January 1. During the six months, 17.20 inches have fallen, all but one month contributing to the excess amount.

Reviewing the precipitation, Mr. Denison stated he thought the rain would be exceptionally beneficial later in the year in spite of the inconvenience it had caused this month.

TEMPERATURE AVERAGE

In temperature the month was average, the mean standing at 57 degrees. On June 5 the mercury touched its highest point at the station on the top of the hill, reaching 81 degrees. Four days previous it had climbed down to 47, the lowest in the standard screen for the month. But on the grass it fell ten degrees lower on June 3.

At the Fairfield Road lower station the maximum of 80 was attained on the fifth day of the month, with the minimums of 41 and 35 being recorded in the standard screen and on the grass on June 4 and 1, respectively.

With rain falling for thirteen days virtually continuously, Old Sol failed to smile as brightly as usual, being visible but 234 hours and 64 minutes, about forty-one hours below the average of 276 for the month.

But although June was deficient, the first six months of the year were good, Mr. Denison stated.

DELUGES ON PRAIRIES

With the low pressure area shifting eastward, Victoria could expect fine and warm weather for the next few days, he added, saying that on the prairies deluges had followed burning heat waves. Thunderstorms had been general.

In Saskatoon the downpour reached the maximum of 2.48 inches in twenty-four hours, reports from the east stated. Regina was drenched beneath a fall of 1.16 inches. In Moose Jaw 1.65 inches fell in the same time. Reduced precipitation was experienced further east with .94 inches falling in Minnedosa, .86 in Qu'Appelle and .84 in Swift Current.

FORECLOSURE ORDER MADE FOR BIG BUILDING

Canadian Press

Vancouver, June 30.—At the suit of James A. Richardson, Winnipeg grain merchant, Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald in the British Columbia Supreme Court made an order for foreclosure on the Marine Building, Hastings and Burrard Streets, reserving to the defendants the right to redeem the property within six months from taking of accounts on July 6.

The defendants are Stimson's Office Buildings Ltd., Toronto, and the Royal Trust Co., which is sued as trustee of a second mortgage of nearly $1,000,000

Richardson alleges default in payment of $250,000 principal, together with $25,000 interest. The mortgage was given to secure him the purchase price of the site where the Marine Building stands, which he owned originally.

E. A. Lucas, counsel for Richardson stated the defendants were to pay within the first three months of the period fixed for redemption this year's taxes, amounting to $40,278. Under those circumstances, he said, the plaintiff did not apply for the appointment of a receiver for the property.

DISCUSSION IN PARIS

Paris, June 30.—United States Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and Ambassador Walter E. Edge conferred at length to-day in the latter's residence, re-examining every angle of the French-United States negotiations and groping for new light on how to ensure an agreement on the Hoover war debts moratorium plan.

They talked during the night by transatlantic telephone with Acting Secretary of State William R. Castle in Washington on the latest French modifications and President Hoover himself was understood to have listened in by a special system installed in the White House. Inasmuch as he is never called direct, this device enables him to intervene in the conversations when he wishes.

AT THE LIMIT

The Associated Press was informed that not only was the newspaper Excelsior correct in quoting Premier Laval to the effect that France had reached the limit of concessions, but that he made the same statement in effect at yesterday evening's conference with the United States delegates.

He was said to have explained the cabinet had deliberated over his policies and had formulated what it deemed the limit of compromise. He said public opinion would not permit France to go any further and that therefore the government was obliged to stand firm, at the same time remaining cordial and convinced an agreement could be reached.

The senate was to hear late to-day an outline of the points under discussion when Premier Laval went before it to answer interpellations. By placing the entire matter before the body he can get complete authorization to negotiate further and conclude details looking toward a settlement.

INFORMATION GIVEN FREELY

In touching upon the work of the enumerators, Mr. Gaunce said he did not know of a single case where the information requested had not been finally given by the citizens.

"There has been no unpleasantness, and that is mighty nice, especially in these times of stress," said Mr. Gaunce. "There have been some who have been obdurate regarding certain questions, but all have come through when the provisions of the act have been explained. Quite a number have taken the trouble to let me know that they had been overlooked by the enumerators, which is an indication of the desire of the public to co-operate."

For several weeks now twenty-eight enumerators have been canvassing the city, and but for one or two districts the census taking is about complete.

Mr. Gaunce was in charge of the census in 1921, when Victoria city had an estimated population of 37,600, with Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt municipalities bringing the total up to about 60,000.

PRAIRIES HAVE WELCOME RAINS

Reports Tell of Beneficial Showers in Wheat Growing Districts of Plains

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, June 3.—After being parched by a heat wave which for the last four days had held thermometers around the 100 mark, many prairie wheat districts to-day were bathed in a soaking rain which extended from the Alberta foothills to Manitoba. As much as three inches of rain was reported in some sections of Saskatchewan, while precipitation of one or two inches appeared to be general throughout Alberta and Manitoba.

Saskatchewan, where rain was most needed, appeared to have received the most beneficial fall. At Outlook, southwest of Regina, three inches had fallen overnight. Saskatoon reported two and one-half inches, while a fair precipitation appeared to be general throughout the province. The torrential rain fell in the Moose Jaw district during the night. Basements in the down-town section of the city were reported flooded and the streets were under water. In the city the precipitation amounted to 1.65 of an inch.

ALBERTA BENEFITS

From Alberta came reports of heavy rains south and west of Calgary. Heavy rains were reported during the night and were continuing to-day.

The Manitoba rain was reported general overnight in the Brandon district, extending as far east as Portage la Prairie. Brandon reported a fall of 2.05 inches, experiencing the heaviest downpour since June 11, 1930. There was a little hail reported, but it was not enough to do any damage.

The weather forecast for the plains promised still further moisture. Heavy dark clouds were reported hanging over the three prairie provinces.

Edmonton, June 30.—The Edmonton district was soaking by an extended rain this morning. The instruments at the government meteorological bureau recorded a precipitation of .36 of an inch between 5.30 p.m. Monday and 5.30 this morning. It was still raining at 8.30 a.m.

Royal City Assize Sessions Are Ended

New Westminster, June 30.—The Assize Court session, opened June 1, was concluded to-day when the case of Tong Wah, Chinese laundryman, was traversed to the fall assizes. Wah was charged with a statutory offence and was convicted at the previous Assize Court session, but was granted a new trial on an appeal.

Mr. Justice Murphy granted bail of $5,000 on the accused's own recognizance after it had been shown Wah had spent nine months in jail awaiting trial. Mr. Justice Murphy said it would be a grave injustice to continue to hold the accused in jail without bail.

The case was traversed owing to the disappearance of the principal witness for the prosecution.

TARIFF BOARD BILL ADVANCED BY COMMONS

Ottawa, June 30.—The Commons this afternoon passed second reading of the tariff board bill without a recorded division.

SOUND PICTURES SHOW SURGEON'S DELICATE WORK

San Francisco, June 30.—Motion pictures set to sound portrayed to the delegates at the American Surgical Association convention here yesterday, inner secrets of the human body during an operation for gastric ulcers dependent on diaphragmatic hernia.

As the movement and functioning of the internal organs were pictured by the camera through the opening made by the surgeon's incisions, the noise which come to the surgeon's ear when he places the stratoscope over the affected parts or over normal parts were brought, highly magnified, to the ears of the assembled surgeons.

CANCER FIGHT

Dr. Dean Lewis, professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins University, discounted in a lecture the statement of medical science that cancer is curable in a large percentage of cases, even though discovered early. He said that years after many supposed or claimed cures it has been found there was still cancer life in a considerable percentage of the patients.

"There are doctors who say they cure eighty to ninety per cent. of the cases they have seen in time," said Dr. Lewis. "All I can say is their imagination is working very strongly."

Dr. Emmet Rixford, professor emeritus of surgery at Stanford University, told the meeting that in the last twenty years tuberculosis of the neck glands had almost disappeared and a similar declaration was made by Dr. Richard H. Miller of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

EYE OPERATION

Dr. Howard C. Naffziger, professor of surgery at the University of California, described an operation for curing protruding eyeballs which, he said, was sometimes the result of the removal of the thyroid gland, causing what is popularly called "pop" eyes.

Lower Rail Rates On Export Cattle

Ottawa, June 30.—The two Canadian railroads have offered a reduction of fifty per cent. in the freight rates on feeder cattle moving from eastern Canadian points to the seaboard for export, Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, informed the Commons committee on agriculture of this to-day. Eastern Canadian districts comprise shipping points in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces. The offer will be in effect until the end of November only.

Berlin, June 30.—Otto Hillig and Holger Hoiriis, transatlantic airmen, who arrived here from Copenhagen yesterday, took off to-day for Gera in Thuringia, en route to Hillig's birthplace at Steinbrucke.

Higher Education An Economic Asset

Professor P. H. Elliott of Victoria College Gives Illuminating Address at Annual Speech Day of Lonsdale School at Shawnigan Lake; Presentation of Prizes And Aquatic Sports.

Special to The Times

Shawnigan Lake, June 30.—Professor P. H. Elliott, principal of Victoria College, stressed the value of higher education as an economic asset in that it opens better opportunities and because of the greater appreciation of life it develops, in an address given at Shawnigan Lake School's annual speech day Monday afternoon.

Prof. Elliott cited statistics showing the definite advantages of higher education in opening up better-paid professions. Investigation had shown that a boy with an eighth grade education could earn about $1,000 more a year than the illiterate; that the high school graduate could earn about $500 a year more than the eighth grade boy, and that the college graduate could earn $1,800 a year more than the high school graduate.

"But even if the problem of the loaves and fishes be solved a great deal still remains before life is worth living, before the boy becomes really the man," said the speaker, who touched on the importance of character, earnest endeavor, independent effort. No man was able to teach a boy anything, but the boy could learn from anybody. The function of a teacher was merely to help one, show one, how to use one's mind and inspire the love of truth. The ideal education would be that which also developed the creative faculty. The finest fruit of education was wisdom. Wisdom implied judgment, which meant deep knowledge of the facts of nature and the intelligence to interpret them. Wisdom was always an individual achievement, although in the strict sense there was no such thing as wisdom, but only wise men.

REVIEW OF WORK

C. W. Lonsdale, headmaster, presided at the prize-giving and addressed the parents, expressing appreciation of the loyal support given during the year by the staff, and briefly reviewing the school's achievement in academic work and sports. In the former connection he specially mentioned that fifteen of the seventeen boys who had taken matriculation examinations had passed, with an average of 59.5, where the provincial average was 57.3. Among the gifts presented to the school was Col. A. Sharland's interhouse cup and a scholarship from Hugh Savage of The Cowichan Leader.

the Dominion's claim to complete legislative control over radio. At the hearing, the provinces of Ontario and New Brunswick actively supported the claims of Quebec, and other provinces held watching briefs.

OTTAWA'S POSITION UPHELD

The finding of the majority of the court is a vindication of the position taken by the Dominion Government, an appeal from the present decision to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London probably will follow and the handing down of the judgment to-day was speeded up in order to expedite a final settlement.

NATIONALIZATION DISCUSSION

From a practical point of view the court's decision has an important bearing on the proposed scheme of nationalizing radio broadcasting in Canada, as recommended by the royal commission headed by Sir John Aird, which reported to the government in 1930. Should the present decision be confirmed by the Privy Council in London, nothing would stand in the way of nationalization of radio by the Dominion Government.

THE QUESTIONS

The questions submitted to the court were:

"1. Has the Parliament of Canada jurisdiction to regulate and control radio communication, including the transmission and reception of signs, signals, pictures and sounds of all kinds by means of hertzian waves and including the right to determine the character, use and location of apparatus employed?

"2. If not, in what particular or particulars or to what extent is the jurisdiction of parliament limited?"

To the first question Chief Justice Anglican and Justices Newcombe and Smith answered "Yes." Thus no answer was necessary to the second question.

To the first question Mr. Justice Rinfret answered: "Construing it as meaning exclusive jurisdiction, no." The limits he places on Dominion power are disclosed in his reasons for judgment.

Mr. Justice Lamont's answer was: "Not exclusive jurisdiction," and he too set out the limits at length.

BEYOND PROVINCIAL LIMITS

"It is said radio communication as explained by the reference," said Mr. Justice Newcombe, "is a matter of property and civil rights in the province, or of a merely local or private nature in the province, and this I deny because, on the assumptions involved in the case, the matter substantially extends beyond provincial limits.

"In the course of the discussion an attempt was made to distinguish between the transmission of a message and the reception of it, and it was said the receiving instrument is property in a province, and that a message is received in a province when the instrument, being there, is adapted and worked for the purpose. But the question is directed not to rights of property in goods or chattels situated within a province, but to radio communication, an effect which is not local, but interprovincial.

"There must be two parties to a communication. There may be many more, and, if the sender be in a foreign country, or in a province or territory of Canada, and the receiver be in another province, it is impossible as I see it to declare the communication is local, either to the transmitting or receiving province.

"The subject is one which undoubtedly relates to the peace, order and good government of Canada and I am not satisfied for any of the reasons which have been submitted or which I have been able to discover that it falls within any of the classes of subjects exclusively assigned to the legislatures of the provinces."

LARGE CONTROL

Mr. Justice Lamont finds the jurisdiction of the Dominion is "not exclusive although, in some particulars a very large measure of control admittedly belongs to it."

Provincial legislatures are not in a position to control radio waves, he says, and control is essential. Thus the Dominion must be allowed a very wide control over transmission and the power to enter into agreements with other nations governing the allotment of wave lengths and the location of stations.

But, Mr. Justice Lamont says "Where an owner of land in a province erects on his property a receiving antenna and to it attaches an apparatus which selects a given wave and delivers the message impressed on it, an understandable signal to those who are within the limits of its carrying capacity, I am unable to see why the receiving apparatus cannot properly be designated a local work in the province. Prima facie, therefore, legislation on these subjects would come within the jurisdiction assigned to the provincial legislatures by section 92 of the British North America Act."

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 30.—The finding of the majority of the Supreme Court of Canada in favor of exclusive Dominion jurisdiction over radio was gratifying to him, said Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, whose department has charge of radio.

"We did not think it advisable to outline a policy on radio broadcasting until we got the decision as to jurisdiction," said the minister. "It now rests with Premier Taschereau whether he will appeal to the Privy Council. If Quebec does not appeal we will take up the question as soon as the time limit for making an appeal has expired."

The department has before it the report of the commission headed by Sir John Aird, which recommended radio broadcasting be owned and operated by a government-owned company, somewhat along the lines of the Canadian National Railways. The provincial governments would have representation on the directorate. The report was brought in during 1929 and referred to a committee of the Commons a year ago. However, the general election prevented any action being taken on it.

PLANE SQUADRON GATHERS AT HAMILTON TO START TOUR

Hamilton, Ont., June 30. — About twenty aircraft of various types will participate in the transcanada air pageant which will start here to-morrow. Between July 1 and September 8, when they are scheduled to fly to Toronto for a demonstration at the Canadian National Exhibition, the planes are to tour the Dominion from coast to coast, visiting every flying club in Canada.

Endorsed by the Aviation League of Canada and conducted under sanction of the Department of National Defence, the officials of the tour will endeavor to promote and stimulate interest in all branches of aviation in Canada, particularly development of public airports, air mail services, the Royal Canadian Air Force, which will be presented by seven machines, flying clubs and the newest of commercial and private aircraft, of which about fifteen models will take part in the tour.

Aerial demonstrations at Hamilton lasting two days will be held before the planes leave for Windsor, Ont., July 3. After showing at the Border Cities, they will leave for Madison, Wisconsin, July 6; Minneapolis, July 7, and Winnipeg, July 8.

The tour will continued to the Pacific Coast. Returning, the planes will proceed as far as Sydney, Cape Breton, before winding up the tour in Toronto.

HUNDREDS DIE IN HEAT WAVE

Death List in Central States Over 500; Farm Animals Drop and Crops Wither

Chicago, June 30.—With little chance of relief before tomorrow, June's record heat wave stalked for an eighth day through the United States to-day

While the Central States were most affected, some sections of the east, south and west also suffered beneath searing temperatures. The Pacific and Atlantic Coast areas for the most part however, enjoyed moderate weather.

Despite local showers and cooling breezes in many localities, the toll of deaths, attributable to the sun's extraordinary reign, exceeded 500, with more than 239 dying within the last twenty-four hours.

These figures include both prostrations and drownings.

Throughout Illinois, Iowa and Indiana farm beasts were reported dropping dead in the fields.

FARMERS ANXIOUS

Iowa farmers were watching with heavy hearts as their grain crops turned brown and the corn leaves shrivelled.

While the Pacific Coast temperatures were generally moderate, two died of the heat at Blythe, Calif., where the mercury went to 110. To balance this, however, snow fell for an hour and a half in portions of the Wenatchee Mountains, near Wenatchee, Wash.

It was generally cooler in the Rocky Mountain area, with rain at Denver, hail and rain at Helena, Mont. Over Idaho and Utah it was merely warm.

THREE BY-LAWS SNOWED UNDER

The polling closed an intensive two weeks' campaign by opposing factions who made the airport measure the centre of interest. As the vote indicates this project was beaten ten to one, which is probably the heaviest defeat ever suffered here by a civic money by-law.

Economic conditions and a pronounced divergence in opinion regarding airplane development are regarded as the two main factors contributing to the defeat. The Victoria Ratepayers' Association, basing its campaign on an economy policy, opposed the measure with all the resources at its command and officials of the organization were well satisfied with the result.

Owing to the fact that the council this year eliminated $30,000 from its estimates for public works, greater support for the street by-laws was anticipated. The verdict at the polls is taken to mean the decisive opinion of the taxpayers against any expenditure for development of the city at this time. Although the City Council as a whole was not fully in accord with all the by-laws, it was felt by placing them before the people a fair decision could be reached.

The interest displayed by the ratepayers was reflected in the size of the vote polled. Actually 3,635 votes were cast. Of this number 166 were spoiled. It was one of the largest polls on ordinary money by-laws in recent years.

BEAUHARNOIS COMMITTEE HEARS COUNSEL'S VIEWS

Ottawa, June 30.—The Commons committee investigating the general hydro and canalization scheme at Beauharnois was given the opinion by Peter White, K.C., this forenoon that the former Dominion Cabinet had exceeded its authority in approving the application of the Beauharnois Power Company for a diversion of water from the St. Lawrence River.

Permission to divert water from a navigable stream could be given only through an act of Parliament, submitted the committee counsel. Neither under the British North America Act nor the Navigable Waters Protection Act, could the Governor-in-Council approve diversion of water, he said.

The Beauharnois plans were approved by the late government by order-in-council, explained Mr. White, insofar as they affected navigation. From the province of Quebec the company secured the right to develop power.

The technical point of whether the Dominion Cabinet possessed the right to approve diversion of water from a navigable stream never had been decided by the Canadian courts, although Mr. White could see no reason why the committee itself could not settle the issue. The Dominion Cabinet undoubtedly possessed the right to protect navigation and to demand the approval of works in navigable streams, but Mr. White contended the power to divert water never had been delegated by Parliament to the cabinet.

has not yet been chosen, though it is understood it will be an Old Countryman. The selection will probably be known by to-night, when the two-day conference will have concluded.

The petition of the smaller festivals for the services of the British adjudicators, who officiated in Victoria for the first time last year, has not been granted as far as next year's gatherings are concerned. But the matter has not been abandoned and it is expected that sooner or later a really satisfactory settlement will be reached.

For next year's festivals at the British Columbia towns of Nanaimo, Kelowna, Kamloops, Cranbrook, Yale-Cariboo and Nelson, two leading Canadian adjudicators will be employed, the conference decided. The dates at these places have been arranged so as not to clash with one another.

Former School Head Dies in Vancouver

Vancouver, June 30.—George Taylor, aged seventy-four, former principal of the school for deaf and dumb at Dublin, Ireland, died this morning at his home here. Born in Middlesex, Eng., Mr. Taylor came to Vancouver a year ago.

Besides the widow, he is survived by three sons, Harold of Vancouver and Stanley and Eric of Winnipeg, and five daughters, Sissie, Kathleen and Mildred, all in England, and Dorothy and Muriel, both at home.

GRAF ZEPPELIN FLIES TO ICELAND

Friedrichshafen, Germany, June 30.—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin left here early to-day on a practice cruise as far as Iceland in preparation for its scientific excursion into the Arctic next month.

Dr. Hugo Eckener was in command and among the twelve passengers aboard were his daughter Lottie, Frau von Schiller, wife of one of the navigators, and Lieut.-Commander Edward H. Smith of the United States coastguard.

Dr. Eckener planned to moor at Reykjavik Thursday noon and return here by Friday. He said the airship would follow the Norwegian coast as far as Bergen Island and head northwest toward Iceland. On the return trip the route would depend on the weather, but likely would be along the English coast.

Start Erecting Tunnel Buildings In Vancouver

Vancouver, June 30.—Work was started this morning on buildings which will house the Burrard Inlet terminus of the C.P.R. tunnel now being constructed underneath the city. Work on the tunnel has been carried on for some time from the False Creek entrance at the Georgia viaduct and the actual tunnel now extends about a quarter of its distance.

Erection of buildings at the Thurlow Street entrance marks the first work at the northern end of the tunnel. The fan house is the first unit to be started, and will house the ventilation equipment which will be used to force smoke out o the tunnel. It is expected the various buildings which will surround the mouth of the tunnel will be finished in two and a half months.

New Moratorium Plan in Ontario

Windsor, Ont., June 30.—The Ontario government will be asked by Windsor to declare a moratorium on all payments of principal in arrears on land mortgages, contracts and agreements for one year, as a result of a resolution passed by the city council. The resolution is in the interest of the small property owners.

Post was at the controls as the ship rolled away from the starting line, but due to the heavy load of gasoline he was unable to get the Winnie Mae into the air on the first trip down the field.

After taxiing back to the start, the Oklahoman opened the throttle and the ship rolled slowly down the field, rising just before the end and clearing a woodpile by only a few feet.

WAVED FAREWELL

After getting into the air, Post nosed his ship around and circled the field to gain altitude. As the fliers soared over the hangar where eight mechanics had worked all night reconditioning the ship, they waved and then turned the nose of the plane due south.

As the Winnie Mae disappeared from sight it was gaining altitude and speed, with ideal weather conditions prevailing in the vicinity and all along the route to the Canadian prairie city.

The fliers were at the field here at 2.30 a.m. (12.30 a.m. Victoria time) and supervised the finishing touches of servicing the plane.

ATE BREAKFAST

Both Post and Gatty appeared more tired than when they went to bed yesterday evening at 10.30 (12.30 a.m. to-day, Victoria time). They ate sparingly of the breakfast which had been prepared and stepped into the ship.

Although the plane lifted with some difficulty due to the 350 gallons of gasoline, once in the air it responded rapidly to the controls and no time was lost in getting straightened out toward the goal. As Post climbed aboard the plane he turned to one of the mechanics and said:

"Boy, when I get to New York I am going to sleep forty-eight hours straight."

The rest here was one of the longest the airmen have had since they left New York a week ago.

Gatty's arm was paining him some when he arrived at the field, but he insisted it was all right and would be completely healed "within a day or two."

PACIFIC ACHIEVEMENT

Triumphant over the wild northern Pacific Ocean, as well as the Atlantic, and still one up on Father Time, Post and Gatty steered their monoplane about 2,500 miles across the Pacific from Khbarovsk, Siberia, to Solomon, near Nome, yesterday and then 500 miles more to Fairbanks before calling in a day.

The landing at Solomon in the place of Nome, their intended destination, indicated they had erred slightly in reckoning their position, but they missed their mark by only thirty-six miles.

TWO MINOR ACCIDENTS

Taking less than three hours at Solomon, they hopped for Fairbanks at 5.30 p.m., after surviving two minor accidents, and arrived here at 9.25 p.m. (11.25 p.m. Victoria time).

In the first mishap, Gatty was struck in the chest and arm by the propeller in cranking the motor. He fell to the ground, safely away from the whirling blade, stated he had been only bruised and clambered into the plane.

On an attempted take-off the plane nosed over, due to the rough ground, and stopped with its propeller apparently bent. Post seized a hammer and wrench and pounded it into shape and they were off.

The flight to Fairbanks was uneventful. The fliers arranged to have their plane serviced while they slept.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Despite two long delays in Siberia, the fliers still were ahead of their ten-day schedule on landing at Fairbanks. They had covered roughly 12,000 miles in six days, twenty-two hours and twenty-nine minutes, and had about three days left in which to cover the approximately 3,000 miles to New York, the starting and stopping point.

From Fairbanks to Edmonton, their next hop, was calculated at 1,450 miles or about half the distance remaining between Post and Gatty and the end of their high-speed venture.

On reaching Fairbanks Post and Gatty had greatly exceeded the speed of the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, which went around the world in twenty-one days, seven hours and thirty-four minutes.

Before leaving here they estimated the 1,450-mile jump to Edmonton should be made in about ten hours, and one more stop, possibly at Detroit, was in their minds.

ALL KINDS OF WEATHER

Nome, Alaska, June 30.—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty preferred death in Bering Sea to cracking up their plane later on their dash to New York, they said yesterday when they arrived at Solomon, near here, from Khabarovsk, Siberia.

"We experienced every kind of weather imaginable coming to Solomon from Khabarovski," Post said as he climbed from the plane.

"I flew for three hours and a half Sunday night with the weather so thick I did not see more than the glass on the cockpit windows at any time." Post declared between mouthfuls of fried chicken as he watched mechanics refueling the ship.

SAW MUCH ICE

"I though then — well, I would rather croak flying across Bering Sea than crack the ship down south after we were almost home. We managed finally to see enough light to guide the ship safely here, but all the way across Bering Sea we saw miles and miles of ice floes moving steadily northward into the straits. The cold and haze prevented us from going to a high altitude. We tried it once and almost froze to death.

"For the last 200 miles into Solomon we flew above clouds and did nosedrop beneath them until within about ten miles of Solomon."

IN HIGH SPIRITS

Although the fliers were under a nervous strain when they landed at Solomon, both were in excellent spirits and seemed certain they would have very little difficulty for the remainder of the trip.

"We are glad to put our feet on good, old ground again," said Post. "Sixteen hours in that plane over water and No Man's Land is enough for us, but it is colder than a son-of-a-gun up here."

The fliers said the Russians had been wonderful to them, and "did everything possible under the sun for us. They tried to speed us along as fast as we could go, hoping we would break all records."

PLANE BOGGED

Except for having to fight weather most of the way across Siberia, the airmen said they had had little trouble, although their plane "bogged" when they set it down on a muddy field at Blagoveschchensk.

"We finally managed to pull it out with the assistance of a whole regiment of soldiers," said Post.

GATTY SHAKEN UP

Gatty was badly shaken up when struck by the propeller of the plane at Solomon, but was not seriously injured. The navigator was leaning over the propeller priming the engine when the heat of the engine fired a cyclinder, bringing the propeller around and striking him over the heart.

In asking that men be appointed for ten-year periods, the present government was attempting to fix the fiscal policy of Canada for years to come, regardless of possible political changes, he said.

The Bennett bill would create a state instrument for "furthering the government's protectionist views," he declared.

He protested against the lack of provision for publishing records of the proceedings and said "secret sessions" would be the result.

Mr. King's speech was made in the debate on the Ilsley amendment to Premier Bennett's motion for second reading of his tariff board bill.

TEXT OF AMENDMENT

The amendment moved by J. L. Ilsley, Liberal, Hants-Kings, N.S., read:

"That this bill be not now read a second time but that it be resolved that any tariff board entrusted with the duties set out in this bill, and more particularly with making inquiry into and reporting on matters pertaining to tariff and taxation, should at all times be such as to enjoy the confidence of the government of the day, and that accordingly the members of such board, unless appointed on the recommendation of independent agencies representing different views or interest, should hold office only during pleasure."

THE VOTE

At yesterday evening's session, following the debate, the House divided on the amendment, the vote being forty-seven for it to eighty-nine against. The amendment received the support of the Liberal members, as well as J. S. Woodsworth and A. A. Heaps, Winnipeg Labor members. Lined up against it were all the Conservative members present, members of the U.F.A. group and A. W. Neill, Independent for Comox-Alberni.

The vote on second reading of the bill was sent over to to-day. Premier Bennett moved adjournment and was listed to close the debate, it being his privilege as mover to speak last.

WHY IT IS OPPOSED

Mr. King, opening his remarks, said: All parties were in agreement as to the advisability of some board to assist the government in connection with tariff matters. If the bill went no farther than that there would be no occasion for the amendment, but it did, and for that reason it did not meet with the approval of the official opposition.

The House would not object to Mr. Bennett dispensing with the services of the former tariff board if he felt such action necessary in order to give him confidence.

The opposition leader felt the Premier's real reason was Mr. Bennett had desired to make tariff changes without reference to the tariff board. Mr. Bennett had intended calling the special session of Parliament for the purpose of instituting a high tariff, and he knew it would have been practical for the House to make a reference to the board before the changes were introduced, but he wanted to make those changes first.

The same situation existed this session. The changes had now been made, and it was clear the Premier had not wished to consult the board before so doing.

TOO HIGH ALREADY

Mr. King predicted the new board would be fully occupied in considering requests for reductions in the tariff since the schedules were being increased to prohibitive rates. If the purpose of the board was to advise the government on tariff changes, these changes would have been submitted to that body in the first instance in order that the government might have the benefit of its advice.

The provisions of the bill, said Mr. King, went far beyond what was necessary for a board which would merely exercise advisory functions. To begin with, the term of ten years' appointment for the members of the board was too long. He thought Mr. Bennett, himself, would regret making the period so long. A ten-year term of office was not required to get good men to sit on the board.

FEW OATHS WANTED

A protest was made by the Liberal leader against the proposal to make the tariff board into a judicial tribunal. Social and economic questions, he submitted, could not be investigated in a court of law. The cost of living could not be determined in an atmosphere of legal formality. "If it is to be a fact-finding body," Mr. King declared, "the less there is of oaths and legal and court proceedings, the better it will be for the investigation in the end."

PLAIN WARNING

Mr. King's warnings in regard to refusing to vote salaries for a board appointed by the present government was given in no uncertain terms.

"I hope that any member who accepts a position on this board, if the legislation goes through in its present form, will realize that if a Liberal government comes into office and it has not the confidence in the members of the board which those who created it had, they may expect to find their term of office will be terminated by no salaries being voted," he said.

It might be said the government succeeding the present administration could repeal the legislation now being put through, said Mr. King. But the Senate might stand in the way. At present, he reminded the House, the two main parties were about on an equal footing in the second chamber, but that condition would change with every Conservative appointment. It was practically certain that when the government changed, the Conservatives would have a majority in the Senate.

QUESTION OF SALARIES

Salaries for the proposed board were put unnecessarily high, the Liberal leader said. The legislation provided $12,000 a year for the chairman and $10,000 each for the two other members of the board. The services of university professors specializing in economic matters could, he felt, be obtained at lower salaries than those provided.

MANION'S VIEWS

Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, said it was impossible for a Minister of Finance to know the details of every item in the tariff schedule. Because of this, the government was asking Parliament to establish a board to gather the details and facts. Although the board would advise the government, the policy of the administration would be its own.

Dr. Manion said he noticed the United States was "working out a method under which a water-tight embargo would be placed against Russian goods." This would be applied, he said, next January and showed "the rightness of our own policy."

Japan and certain central European countries were other countries with which Canada could not compete on equal terms because of the low standard of living and wages prevailing.

Dr. Manion said it was true the tariffs were not of much benefit to the prairie wheat producers, but at any rate the Liberals had never done anything for the wheat producers which compared with the five-cent-per-bushel subvention on export wheat proposed by the present administration.

The Conservative Party was unfairly charged with favoring "higher and higher" tariffs, said Dr. Manion. The real intention of the government was merely to guarantee the producers an opportunity for fair competition. Within the next two or three years there was little doubt Great Britain would herself turn to protectionist policies.

It would be impossible, said the Minister of Railways in defending the proposed ten-year term, to secure the proper men to act as commissioners unless they were guaranteed a sufficiently long term of office.

No secret meetings would be held by the board, said Dr. Manion. Dealing with the financial structure of industries, they would be treated as confidential. The board would act merely as a fact-finding institution, reporting directly to the Minister of Finance on such matters as the relative cost of production in Canada and in competing nations. At the same time, the board would not dictate the government's tariff policy. That was something the responsibility for which the administration could not escape, said Dr. Manion.

DUFF GIVES VIEWS

Following a remark interjected by William Duff, Liberal, Antigonish-Guysboro, N.S., Speaker Black called the House to order and requested members not to "shout interruptions."

"Particularly when they are from the other side of the House," said Mr Duff.

Pandemonium reigned for a short period. Then Premier Bennett rose and gave it as his view, Mr. Duff should withdraw the remark. If Mr. Duff refused to withdraw remarks of this nature, said the Premier, the House would have to take cognizance of the matter in another way.

Mr. Duff did not withdraw and Dr. Manion concluded his speech by outlining the terms of the bill. He said the Liberals had attempted to leave the impression the government was moving "to shackle this country with protection."

CLEAVAGE OF PRINCIPLES

He had no objection to a tariff board as such, said Hon. Charles Stewart, Liberal member for West Edmonton and former Minister of the Interior, nor did he think anyone on the opposition side had. There were certain phases of the proposed legislation, however, that were objectionable. He said the members of the board should not be appointed for ten years, because any succeeding government holding different views would not want its advice and the board would not have any power to "name" rates.

DIFFICULT TASK

Alfred Speakman, U.F.A., Red Deer said the bill ignored the very serious question of what effect tariffs would have on internal trade, and trade between Canada and the world. It had always been difficult enough to find the cost of production in this country. How much more difficult it would be to establish facts with regard to foreign industry?

The problem, Mr. Speakman declared was to protect industry without giving a premium on inefficiency. He thought the weakness of the amendment was that it merely criticized the manifest evils on the bill without suggesting remedies.

Considering all factors, the board probably would be less partisan if its members were appointed for ten-year terms, suggested Mr. Speakman. It would feel more independent and would exercise its judgment with greater freedom than if called on to reflect merely the tariff views of the party in power he thought.

The only thing that could be done now, Mr. Speakman concluded, was to seek to amend the bill in committee but he had little hope that would be accomplished.

RYCKMAN SPEAKS

That the public would be afforded all the protection provided under the Combines Investigation Act, with the advantage of an easier method of procedure, by virtue of the terms of the present bill, was the argument of Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue. The bill would give power to the government to refer inquiries under the Combines Act to the new tariff board.

J. E. Lawson, Conservative member for West York, Ont., thought the new board would give the country a scientific tariff, and its findings would be made public.

Ludendorff Sued For Damages

Gotha, Germany, June 30.—General Erich Ludendroff was named defendant yesterday in a libel action brought by the octagenarian Count Theobald Zu Dohna, whom the general accused of high treason in a lecture three years ago.

He based the charge on the assertion the count had known of a plot to murder the Austrian Archduke Ferdinand three years before the assassination, but that he had taken no steps to prevent it.

A decision is expected by Saturday.

VANCOUVER NOT TO CUT WAGES

Vancouver, June 30.—No cut in the wages of city employees at present was the recommendation decided on by the salary adjustment committee yesterday. The committee, which met to hear representatives of the civic employees on the proposal to reduce wages, will report this decision to the City Council.

Opponents of wage reductions, among them Mayor Louis D. Taylor, took the stand such a cut would result in employers throughout the city cutting wages of workers at a time when it would be most severely felt.

Alderman W. H. Lembke moved wages of more than $100 a month be cut 5 per cent, and those of $100 and under 2.5 per cent. His motion was defeated.

Such an attempt to reduce wages of civic employees should never have been made at a time like this, said Mayor Taylor. "No other city of any size in Canada has done it," he said. "By doing it we would destroy the purchasing power of individuals and set an example to employers all over the province."

SIXTY-FOUR TO-MORROW

CANADA'S SIXTY-FOURTH BIRTHDAY falls in a time of national testing and stock-taking. The occasion is not without precedent; in fact, we have had many similar trials in our comparatively short span as a Dominion, and every one of them has been followed by a notable era of expansion. Most of them, like the present one, have arisen largely from circumstances over which we have had no control, in the sense that they originated in adverse economic conditions in other countries, chiefly in the United States. The depression in the nineties and in 1907 in the neighboring republic, following periods of inflation, infected the industrial life of this country to a similar extent, and our recovery followed the same course.

All this emphasizes the inexorable and unalterable fact that, notwithstanding national divisions and barriers in the form of fiscal policies and other fundamental differences, this continent economically in the larger aspect is an economic unit, created by geography, and every considerable industrial subsidence in any important part of it is bound to react to the disadvantage of the whole.

Both Canada and the United States just now are being impressed with another important fact, and that is that they are part of a world which also has become very considerably an economic unit; that for purposes of trade and commerce this continent is one of the constituents of an organization whose orbit is the whole globe. Modern transportation facilities, particularly on the sea and in the air, the development of wireless telegraphy, telephone and the radio, have brought this continent and Europe and Asia as closely and intimately together as Canada and its neighbor were a few years ago.

Hence, an economic depression in Europe means hard times in America in a measure that would not have been possible a decade ago. The decline in the price of silver and the consequent restriction of the buying power of Asia touches every home on this continent. Russia, experimenting with a great social-economic idea, can make its influence felt in the smallest farming village in Saskatchewan or Minnesota.

Practical recognition of the natural, and therefore inevitable, law that no country, no matter how great its population and resources, can live unto itself, should be one of the sure signs of economic convalescence, and although that recognition is a grudging one in some quarters, eventually it will be made general by the whip of economic necessity. Mr. Hoover's war debt proposal is an indication of the growing appreciation of this condition in a country which for more than a century has tenaciously held to a policy of political and economic isolation. Canada, which has been flirting with the theory the United States is now cautiously discarding, ultimately will be forced to recognize the same invincible economic fact.

We also are discovering that nation building means much more than economic progress and material values; that there can be nothing more fragile than a national foundation composed mainly of factors of this kind, a foundation which quakes and cracks whenever there is a money panic thousands of miles away. We can understand now better than ever before how it was that great empires of other ages collapsed at the height of their wealth, power, pomp and pride.

When the acid testing time came these factors were found to be pitiably futile; they were contemptible substitutes for the qualities of public honor and virtue which must be the root of all real progress, and without which no nation, no matter how materially rich and powerful, can last. If the Canadian people cultivate these qualities with the same intensity and determination with which they have been cultivating their material resources, they need not fear for the future of their country.

THE ANSWER TO ALFONSO

THE RESULT OF SUNDAY'S PARLIAMENTARY elections in Spain would appear to be a very definite intimation to former King Alfonso that the people of his native land do not desire him to return. Latest reports from Madrid proclaim an overwhelming victory for the Conservative-Republican-Socialist bloc, with only half a dozen Monarchists left to remind the new regime of the old form of government.

Sunday's voting was for the purpose of selecting 470 members—one deputy for every 50,000 of the population—of the Constituent Assembly. It will meet and determine definitely the future form of government. It will then proceed to write a new constitution. This will be the final intimation to the former monarch that he must make the best of his exile. Alfonso, it will be remembered, declared he had merely removed himself from his country to avoid bloodshed, that he would not consider abdication until the people had had an opportunity of expressing their wishes.

Eight years have elapsed since the constitution of Spain was cast aside by the assumption of power, with the assent of the monarch, by General Primo de Rivera. But it was not long afterward that unrest began to manifest itself in various forms, and the dictatorship, first under De Rivera and later under Berenguer, gradually fell from grace. With its end, of course, the end of the monarchy was inevitable. Alfonso abdicated his authority and tied himself hand and foot to the absolute despotism represented by the dictatorship. He prepared the way for a republic that day in 1923 when the voice of De Rivera over the telephone from Barcelona gave him the choice of doing as the General demanded or of resisting the ultimatum. Had he taken the latter course, he would, at least, have asserted his authority.

The main electoral innovation at Sunday's election was the abolition of the old districts. The new districts created exclusively for the contest were large cities or entire provinces, each of which elected more than one deputy. Under this system no deputy really has a "constituency" in the accepted sense of the term, as there now will be, for instance, sixteen deputies from Madrid, instead of one deputy from each section of the city. The new Constituent Assembly, by the way, has complete powers. It may meet as it sees fit; convert itself into a legislative body if desired, and structurize the nation as it deems best.

THE LOAN BY-LAWS

THE HEAVY DEFEAT OF THE LOAN by-laws yesterday was generally looked for. The taxpayers plainly are not in the mood to embark on any substantial capital expenditures at this time, when from all quarters they are receiving notices of heavier tax levies than they have had to pay before.

The airport by-law was the chief object of attack, and the verdict against it was unusually severe, but we do not interpret this as an indication that the public are not appreciative of the importance of being on the air map of the world. They simply did not regard the proposal that was submitted to them as opportune or sound. They also are convinced—and we share their conviction—that a relatively small expenditure on the Lansdowne field will enable that area adequately to meet the needs of such air traffic by landplanes as we are likely to have during the next few years.

We can not agree with our contemporary that yesterday's vote reflected any opposition by the public to a seaplane base in the Inner Harbor. This project involves no expenditure out of the public pocket, all of its cost, amounting to some $200,000, being provided by the company seeking the foreshore privileges from the Dominion government. Incidentally, the application for those rights by the Pacific International Airways is about to be renewed, and in view of the recent conversion of the two major shipping companies to an appreciation of the advantages of Victoria Harbor for seaplane purposes, there should be no further opposition from that source.

WAR DEBTS AND REPARATIONS

IN SPITE OF THE UNITED STATES CONtention that there is no relationship between war debts and reparations paid by Germany, the fact remains that under the annunities schedule of the Young Plan, Germany pays into the Bank of International Settlements $427,164,000 annually to the credit of the Allies, and from that fund the bank disburses, in principal and interest, the yearly amounts Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium have contracted to pay on account of their debts to the United States. What is left of the total goes into the treasuries of the reparations-collecting countries. But every dollar reaching the United States from her debtors in Europe first of all is paid by Germany. Hence, war debts and reparations are tied tightly together. In August, Germany's annual instalment of $427,164,000 is due. She can not meet it. The till of the International Bank from which is taken the money to pay the United States debt will be empty this year if Germany pays nothing in. President Hoover has recognized Germany's helplessness in the matter, and for that and other reasons he has proposed his moratorium for one year.

This is how debts and reparations are related: Germany pays France $199,706,880 in reparations yearly. Of this sum France pays on account of her debt to Great Britain, $64,790,400 and $39,993,700 to the United States. The remainder, a little more than $90,000,000, goes into the French treasury as part of the general revenues of France. To the United States, Great Britain pays annually on account of her debt to that country the sum of $160,000,000. She is able to do this by drawing $86,228,400 from Germany in reparations, $64,790,000 from France, $22,819,560 from Italy, and $6,860,160 from other countries in debt payments. As already pointed out, the sum Britain collects from France first of all comes from Germany, while after she has paid her annual instalment to the United States she has approximately $20,000,000 for herself. In short, then, Germany is not able this year to make her reparations payment, and the United States can not, and will not try to, collect her debt instalments.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

WHERE FARMER FITS
The Recorder and Times

The substantial reductions in the prices of foodstuffs have hit the farmer more keenly than any other class. There have been reductions in other classes of goods, but none has gone downward to the extent registered in foodstuffs. The farmer is thus placed in the position of having to accept lower prices for his goods than have prevailed for more than a decade, while being obliged to pay almost as much as before the slump for the manufactured articles that he requires.

THE ATTACK ON THE C.N.R.
The Manitoba Free Press

The phenomenal success of the national system, which was an uncouth medley of run-down railway equipment when Sir Henry Thornton took over the management in 1922, was due to the new management being protected to the greatest possible degree from political interference. On this principle the reorganization has progressed, and on this basis it has reconditioned the original tangled complex of lines into a transcontinental railway system which is perhaps the greatest railway enterprise on the globe. This is the railway the Canadian people now possess, and when honorable members begin to show acute interest in the details of the president's personal expenditures, the Canadian people would be simple indeed if they believed that it was nothing but simple disinterestedness which was animating the gentlemen who are asking the questions.

It is not. Undoubtedly there are people who want to get rid of Sir Henry Thornton, and they want to get rid of him in order to instal a management more in line with what they think the national railways should be. They want an amenable management. One that will not resist interference, or suggestions, from the proper sources in Ottawa and elsewhere. The barriers now standing between themselves and this delightful condition would be down, and the great fat fields of Canadian National Railways opportunity would lie open for the deserving citizens who are now looking at them with such appreciative eyes.

A THOUGHT

Sleep in peace, and wake in joy.—Scott.

Loose Ends

Very dull to-day — concerning radio broadcasts — Canadian things and all that—the dangerous ideas of Sir Arthur Keith—and where they lead to.

By H. B. W.

YOU CANNOT have failed to notice lately the marked improvement of Canadian radio broadcasts. While they do not compare with some of the featured hours of the great American orchestras, on the whole I find them preferable to the average programme from the United States. The Canadian stations seem to prefer good music to jazz, and I have been listening to several hours of a Canadian programme without the intrusion of one blues singer. This is a condition which it is to be devoutly hoped will continue. Joy Elmer Morgan, chairman of the American National Committee on Education by Radio, recently said that the United States was in "vastly greater danger as a people from New Yorkism than we are from Communism." The average American radio programme, or at least a very great number of them, speak in the voice of that very New Yorkism which the best Americans detest but which, at the moment, seems to be the vogue.

* * *

CANADIAN BROADCASTERS ought to avoid it not only because it is cheap and silly in itself, but because it is in no sense Canadian. It is not even American, but Manhattan; or at least it is the product of that minority of Americans who live in the great cities with their unnatural and rather stupid life. Even if it were not objectionable in itself Canada should avoid it and develop a technique of its own. The besetting sin of Canadians is to imitate other peoples and to imagine that, because their country is young and small it shouldn't try to develop methods, arts, ideas of its own. Nothing, of course, could be a greater historic mistake, for the best products of all times have usually come from nations when they were young and struggling.

* * *

IN THE radio we have a new medium of education and entertainment which undoubtedly will have a powerful effect in the molding of national character, in making the atmosphere of Canadian life. We ought to make it above everything Canadian. Even if we couldn't improve on the American style we should try to create a new one of our own anyway, for the great thing for Canadians to realize is that their job on this particular speck of the universe is to develop a culture and a civilization of their own; not because we dislike other peoples, not because we are any better than anyone else, not that we want to tell anybody else what he should do, but because growth is the first law of life. Any people who don't contribute something new to the human family besides railways, skyscrapers and automobiles might just as well not have lived at all and saved themselves and the world a lot of inconvenience. Everybody seems to agree on Canada first economically, though there is a division of opinion on the best method to promote that result. A much more important thing is Canada first intellectually. When that condition is achieved, when Canadians learn to think as Canadians and not with the secnd-hand, jazzed-up ideas of other countries beclouding their minds, the material things will follow in due course.

* * *

SIR ARTHUR KEITH, the eminent British anthropologist, who has studied the descent of man so long that man appears to him to have descended beyond all hope of recovery, lately cheered the students of the University of Aberdeen up as they were about to go out into the world. "Nature," he said, "keeps her human orchard healthy by pruning, and war is her pruning hook. We cannot dispense with her services." So long as anthropologists stick to anthropology and scientists to science, they are not in any immediate danger; but when the leaders of scientific thought start implanting ideas like that in the minds of young people it is time something was done about it. These men who think too much are only dangerous when they begin to think out loud. You may say that such utterances are quickly forgotten, that they have no lasting effect, but unfortunately that is not true. If a sufficiently clever man preaches such a philosophy it is likely to spread like a miasma and cause serious damage; just as the brutish philosophy of Nietzsche was so ably presented as to become almost a religion of destruction and carnage in pre-war Germany. And besides, Sir Arthur Keith is ignoring the obvious truth.

* * *

THE OBVIOUS truth is that war whatever it may have done in other days, does not keep the human orchard healthy nowadays. The most obvious thing about the Great War was that it killed off the best, the strongest and the bravest of the population. It pruned the best branches off the human orchard. It hasn't produced much good fruit since then. And the second truth which Sir Arthur overlooks is that within the visible future nature will not need to keep pruning at all. Within the visible future the population of most civilized countries will have reached a stationary point, and some, including that of the United States will begin to decline. By that time it is probable that civilization will have penetrated into other teeming regions like the Orient and they, too, will become less prolific. It is quite possible that the problem of the world a few centuries hence will be to produce enough people to keep things comfortable. The need for pruning will become less all the time. In any case with modern efficiency and the help of scientists, the next war would not be a pruning process. It would be the burning up of the whole orchard, and this hardly seems worth while.

* * *

THERE HAVE been advocates of race suicide before this, of course Schopenhauer, the great German philosopher, believed in the slow extinction of the race, but always slept with two loaded revolvers beside his bed for fear some burglar might kill him. But the implements of destruction were so crude in those days that this gentleman's ideas did no particular harm. To-day if the young become convinced by such men as Keith that war is inevitable and wholesale slaughter the way of nature, nothing will prevent these things from occurring on a magnificent scale, and civilization, to keep itself healthy and perpetuate its advantages, will destroy itself completely

The NON-PENSIONERS' ASSOCIATION

To the Editor:—False reports have been circulated among the public of Victoria and district detrimental to this association, also to non-pensioned ex-service men in general. Such being the case I have been instructed by the non-pensioners of the Great War Welfare Association to state that this association is a British association, and its constitution will stand the closest investigation. In it is embodied loyalty to the King, Canada and the Empire. This association has no connection with or does it support in any way whatsoever, the red element. It does support law and order.

This association is composed of ex-service men who were discharged as "A" on demobilization, and who are not in receipt of a pension at the present time, 95 per cent of whom have served their King, Canada and the Empire in France and on the high seas.

These men have been of no expense to Canada since receiving their discharge. They have endeavored to carry on for twelve long years, to earn a living for themselves and their dependents.

What are the conditions we find among these men to-day? Many are suffering terrible hardships, also their dependents, through unemployment.

This association maintains that the least these men should receive is the opportunity to earn a living to support themselves and their families. These men earned this privilege, if one may call it a privilege, on the battlefields of France and on the high seas.

One of the principal aims of this association is to secure employment for unemployed non-pensioners ex-service men. In this the association respectfully appeals to the business firms and employers of labor generally to assist by giving employment to the unemployed non-pensioned ex-service men whenever possible.

The remainder of the aims and objects of this association mostly concern the government and the association itself.

In conclusion, this association would advise the public to beware of mischief makers who are of no use to themselves or to any one else.

M. CHAMBERS,
Secretary Non-pensioners' Welfare Association.

MIGHT BE RIGHT

To the Editor: — I notice you quote with disapproval the recent utterance of the eminent British scientist, Sir Arthur Keith, at Aberdeen University: "Nature keeps her human orchard, war is her pruning hook. We cannot dispense with her services. As a gardener nature has two sides, a good and a bad. She plants and she also prunes."

Interesting as another and almost parallel exhibit in the museum of anti-peace utterances is that made only last week by Capt. J. Schmidt of the United States regular army in warning people against the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, as follows:

"We shall have peace on earth only when the aggressor nation is certain to encounter overwhelming force. We live in a world governed by divine laws which we can neither alter nor evade, and in this world force is the ultimate power."

ASK THE ASTROLOGER

To the Editor:—We have been having a discussion on the question of what is a wet moon and what is a dry moon, and not being scientific people have decided to ask you. Most of us believe a dry moon is one in which the horns point upward, like a basin holding water, while a wet moon is one in which the horns point downward, like a basin which is not holding the water, but pouring it out. Are we correct in this? As I remember the moon the last couple of weeks, the horns have been turned downwards, thus spilling out all the water and making for a very wet condition. The moon changed last night and some of the scientists say this next phase will bring dry weather, with the horns of the moon pointed upwards, as if the basin were holding water. Can you tell us if this is right?

MONEY AT WORK HELD NECESSARY TO CREATE JOBS

Capital and Labor, Says Economist, Are Dependent Upon Each Other

New York, June 24.—While much publicity is given to labor unemployment, relatively little has been said about the acuteness of capital unemployment. However, in a broad sense, labor unemployment can only be solved when capital unemployment is solved, the two being inseparably dependent upon each other, according to Paul Gourrich, Wall Street economist.

Depressions have grown in severity with the development of our modern society, partly because of the growing complexity and interdependence of things going hand in hand with the decreased self-sufficiency of the masses; partly because of the rising level of business, implying descents from greater heights, with increased pains and dangers, and partly because of the quickened tempo of motion.

An index of World Production of Minerals and Metals from 1853 to 1930, prepared by Carl Snyder, of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, shows that whereas in the earlier depressions, such as 1873-74, 1883-85 and 1892-93, the declines were insignificant, and as late as 1907-08 the decline was from 67.2 to 62.1 (taking 1923-25 as 100). They became considerably more severe in the years that followed. The after-the-Great-War decline was from 90.1 in 1918 to 69.3 in 1921, and in the present depression the decline has so far been from 126.2 in 1929 to a low of 110.8 in 1930. For the year 1931, figures, of course, are not yet available.

INCONSEQUENTAL DECLINES

Similarly, another index of Carl Snyder, viz., World Production of Raw Minerals, including Minerals and Meals, showed inconsequential declines in the depressions of the last twenty-five years of the nineteenth century. In the depression of 1907-08 it registered a decline from 68.1 to 66.1, but in the depression of 1920-21 the decline was almost eighteen points, viz., from 88.1 to 70.4, and in 1929-30 eleven points, viz., from 127 to 116.

That the present depression is of unusual severity, in spite of a squad and adequate monetary system in this country at least, particularly if allowance is made for the special conditions surrounding the transition from war economy to peace economy in the depression of 1920-21, is realized. That, taking into consideration the depth of the decline in conjunction with its duration, and excepting the oldest known—the seven lean years of the Bible—it is still more unusual is becoming more painfully apparent every day. But it is not perhaps fully realized that, in some respects at least, the present depression is fully unprecedented.

There is no precedent for the present low money rates in the records of this country, going back 100 years, and for England 200 years. A series of average money rates compiled by Moody, dating back to 1830, shows a low for all time of 2.34 per cent reached in June, 1894. In that year commercial paper rates reached a low of 2.72 per cent in October, and they declined in June of the following year to 2.63 per cent. In April of this year (1931) all classes of money rates averaged 2.02 per cent and at present they are about 1.80 per cent, while commercial paper is now 2 per cent.

UNPRECEDENTED RATES

If one scans the records of the world one has difficulty in finding any comparable situation as far as the present money market is concerned. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York acceptance buying rate of ⅜ per cent to 1 per cent is unprecedented, while its rediscount rate of 1½ per cent was matched but once in the long history of the Bank of England. In 1852 the discount rate of the Bank of England was cut to its historic low of 1½ per cent. This was in respect to a temporary plethora of money which followed upon the discoveries of gold in Australia and California.

Within less than two years the Bank of England discount rate was back to its average level, around which it fluctuated for the last 200 years—4 per cent to 5 per cent. The fifties were characterized in England by a rising trend of the yields on Consols, of the dividends of the Bank of England and of commodity prices. In the United States the period 1848-85 was characterized by perhaps the sharpest downward movement in money rates in the history of the country to that date, but they rarely dipped under 3 per cent and averaged about 6 per cent.

While the fifties were characterized by highly disturbed world political conditions, wars and revolutions, the period was also one of great development of modern industries. It was in these years that the aniline dyes and Bessemer processes of making steel were invented, the Atlantic tleegraph was laid, and the first petroleum well opened in Pennsylvania. The demand for capital was then rising sharply and was absorbing all the available supply.

BIRTH OF INDUSTRIES

Among the high spots of industrial development in the forty-year period from 1845 to 1885 may be mentioned the following: On May 1, 1851, Queen Victoria inaugurated at the Crystal Palace an exhibition of the works of industry of all nations. In 1867 the great exposition of industry of all nations took place in Paris. A number of industries saw their birth in this period—shoe machinery, building elevators, typewriters, compressed air for tunneling, sulphide wood pulp paper, the dynamo and electricity, telephone, telegraph, phonograph, cash register, sewing machines, and in 1885 the internal combustion engine, which marked the beginning of the development of the automotive industry (invention by Daimler of the high speed gasoline engine).

The whole period was also characterized by large immigration into the United States, the development of colonial enterprises and of backward foreign countries. Above everything else the whole period was characterized by tremendous railroad construction the workover.

The agitation against slavery throughout the world found expression in the emancipation of serfs in Russia in 1861, by the abolition of slavery in the United States in 1863, followed by abolition of slavery in a number of colonial possessions. It is perhaps more than a coincidence that the extension of freedom and individual rights went hand in hand with the numerous industrial inventions and the great industrial development.

With something like 25 per cent of the world's plant at present unemployed capital does not appear to have similar opportunities in the near future. The present low capital rates may then indicate that there is an extensive period of capital unemployment ahead of us and consequently of low capital rates.

MEASLY EARNING POWER

It is the measly earning power of new capital, due to restricted opportunities for sale employment, which is responsible for the small demand for it and consequently for the low capital rates.

One German railway has a test stand on which its locomotives are placed once a year and operated for many hours without moving off the stand, a careful check being taken while the wheels travel at top speed.

A California drug store has installed a miniature moving picture theatre, seating six persons, as a lure for customers.

Closing Exercises Of Division Two At Shawnigan Lake

Special to The Times

Shawnigan Lake, June 30.—The closing exercises of Division II, Shawnigan Public School, took place on June 25.

Thre was a large gathering of parents and friends. Miss E. V. Archer, teacher, and her forty pupils had transformed the schoolroom into a veritable art gallery, with examples of the children's work, together with a profusion of flowers. A short programme preceded the presentation of prizes and honor rolls. Trustee S. J. Heald occupied the chair. Mrs. F. M. Gannon, president of the Women's Institute, and Mrs. M. Stewart presented the prizes. In addition to the regular school prizes, the winners of the "Made in Canada" competition was announced. The competition took the form of the largest and most neatly arranged collection of labels from articles made in Canada. The idea is a good one. It impresses the children with the fact that most everything needed in daily life can be grown, manufactured or packed in Canada, thus providing work for them when they grow up. The proceedings opened with "O Canada," recitation, "I Don't Like Beetles," Ivy Hunt; song by Grade I pupils; spelling match by Division I; recitation, "My Goal," David Bell; recitation, "Holidays," Beulah Woodruff.

DIVISION II

Honor rolls.—Proficiency, Ivy Hunt; deportment, Jimmy Ward; regularity and punctuality, Charlie Johnson.

Promotion, Division II, which takes in Grades 1 to 4, inclusive.

Promoted from Grade 1 to Grade 2.—Muriel Sam, Norma Woollacotte, Dorsham Singh, Kenneth Ovington, Grace Cousens, Charlie Johnson, Dorothy Johnson and Marjorie Ward.

Promoted from Grade 2 to Grade 3.—William Filgate, Dorothy Cousens, John Heggie, Janet Ching Chong, Irene Hauers, Cyril Filgate, Annie Aitken Gordon Aske and Mildred Aske.

Promoted from Grade 3 to Grade 4.—Phyllis Robertson, Rita Webber, Shirley Ovington, Tommy Lamb, Bernice Ovington, David Bell and Billy Broocke.

Promoted from Grade 4 to Grade 5.—Ivy Hunt, Mary Lamb, Beulah Woodruff, Francis Carlson, Lillian Barnett, Claude Heggie, Shigewo Nakashima and James Lovell.

CHAPLIN BLAMES THE REPORTERS

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 30.—"I think possibly the right honorable member will find it is a case of being wrongly reported," was the reply of Hon. J. D. Chaplin, Conservative, Lincoln, Ont., when Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, drew the attention of the Commons yesterday afternoon to the report of a statement attributed to Mr. Chaplin, declared to have been made at St. Catharines, Ontario, last Saturday.

Mr. King read from a newspaper to the effect that Mr. Chaplin had expressed disapproval of the new Canadian-Australian trade treaty and contemplated the possibility of this disapproval resulting in his abandoning the Conservative Party.

If Mr. Chaplin was correctly reported, said Mr. King, would the Prime Minister say why some members of the House had been favored with advance copies of the Australian treaty?

Mr. Chaplin's comment was the answer.

Junior Orange Lodge.—Pride of Victoria, No. 55, J.O.A., held their regular meeting in the Orange Hall on Saturday. Miss L. Edmonds and Miss M. Drysdale presiding, with a good attendance of members. It was decided to hold the annual picnic in the first week of August, the date and arrangements to be made at the next meeting. There will be one meeting only in July, on the twenty-fifth. Some interesting times are scheduled to take place after the holidays. Miss Unis Drysdale, who has been away from Victoria for the past year, was welcomed back. Mrs. Briscoe of Calgary as a visitor gave a very interesting talk on the work of the juvenile lodge in Calgary and on the order in general. Members are reminded of the church parade on July 5, starting from the Orange Hall at 10.30 o'clock. For any desired information telephone the Guardians, Mrs. Ashworth, G 5568, or Mrs. Wight, E 9971.

First Church Guild Met—A largely attended and interesting meeting of the Women's Guild of the First United Church, with the president, Mrs. A. S. Christie, in the chair, was held in the church hall on Monday afternoon. An impressive opening devotional period was conducted, Mrs. Burn presiding at the organ and Mrs. D. McKillop leading in an instructive Bible lesson from the life of Mary Magdalene. The treasurer's report was very gratifying, nearly $100 having been added to the balance on hand as a result of the guest tea held at Mrs. A. S. Christie's residence on Saturday afternoon. All were glad to know that the treasurer, Mrs. G. D. Clifford was convalescent and able to be in their midst after her illness. Tea and delicious refreshments were served to all at the close of the meeting, Miss MacAllen and Mrs. D. Fair being the hostesses.

Junior Pupils in Recital.—The junior pupils of Mrs. Milton White appeared in the regular monthly recital on Saturday evening. Those taking part were: Georgina Wilson, Betty Meharey, Marjory Biscoe, Gloria Wilson, Nancy Wright, Patricia Dyer, Hazel McMahon, Mary Brawn, Florence Forester, Elizabeth McArthur, Evelyn Olsen, Vera Cox, Baba Bevan, Frances Steer, Meriam Steer, May Muir, Sandro Bulloch-Webster, David Angus, Frankie Brawn, Kenneth LaLecheur and Gerald Marriner. Violin pupils of Miss Irene Bick assisting were Elizabeth Bashford and Harry Brawn.

CATHOLIC WOMEN GATHER IN EAST

National Convention Opens in P.E.I.; Birth Control and Divorce Flayed

Canadian Press

Charlottetown, P.E.I., June 30.—Survival and protection of the family was submitted to the eleventh annual national convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada yesterday as one of the most critical problems now intimately affecting all persons of the Christian world.

Birth control and divorce were named in the presidential address of Mrs. M. J. Lyons, Ottawa, as the greatest dangers threatening family life. The retiring president reported the league's finances had never been in such a prosperous condition.

With fifty-one new subdivisions organized since the last convention, work in this direction advanced greatly during the past year, especially in the new diocese of Regina, where seventeen new subdivisions were formed.

MANY DELEGATES

Many delegates have arrived for the convention and have registered at the Canadian National Hotel, which is the headquarters.

Members of the executive in Charlottetown are: Mrs. M. J. Lyons, Ottawa, national president; Mrs. J. C. Keenan, Toronto, second vice-president; Mrs. J. J. Connoly, Edmonton, Alta.; third vice-president; Miss Sarah Tansey, Montreal, treasurer; Miss Margaret Jones, Montreal, executive secretary; Mrs. J. W. McIntyre, Charlottetown, first vice-president. St. John, N.B., delegates who arrived last night are: Mrs. Amelia Haley, president, St. John subdivision; Mrs. J. M. Logan, diocese secretary; Mrs. John Owens, convener on credentials; Mrs. E. L. Oregan, past president, North St. John subdivision; Mrs. K. O'Neill, past president, St. John subdivision.

WOMEN OPPOSE "WALKATHONS" IN VANCOUVER

City Council Hears Strong Indictment; Doctor Warns of Danger of Insanity

Vancouver, June 30.—Mounting opposition to Vancouver's "Walkathons" was in evidence at yesterday's session of the city council when two prominent women residents of the city and Dr. J. W. McIntosh submitted adverse statements to the city fathers.

Mrs. J. Z. Hall, B.C. native daughter, prominent club woman and well-known public worker, presented a strong indictment against the continuation of these events.

"I have witnessed something that I thought could never have happened in Vancouver," said Mrs. Hall, describing visits she had paid to the auditorium walkathon. "I have watched girls held up and pulled around by boys, and I have seen boys held up and pulled around by girls. I would hate to think that any of my children were undergoing such an ordeal."

DOCTOR'S CONDEMNATION

Dr. McIntosh, in the final paragraph of an official report, voiced the opinion that, with 200 boys and girls participating in such events, a serious condition was created. He intimated that it was possible such events might contribute to an increase in the population of the province's insane asylums, adding, in view of this fact, it might be well for the council to intervene.

After considerable discussion, the council finally decided to deal with the whole question at a special meeting next Thursday.

Consideration of the walkathons was launched by the appearance of Mrs. Hall and Mrs. W. A. Clark as delegates to protest against them.

SHOW CHILDREN'S TASTES IN FILMS

Investigation Reveals Youngsters Enjoy "Frightening" Movies; Boys Prefer Thrills

Canadian Press

Birmingham, Eng., June 30.—Cowboys and lovers are the girls' popular movie heroes, and comics and crime chiefly attract boys at cinema shows, according to replies to a questionnaire made to 1,439 children between the ages of eight and fourteen recently by the Birmingham Cinema Inquiry Committee. The questionnaire was: "How many times a week do children go to cinemas, and why do they go?"

As to the children's attendances at movie shows the following figures were gathered: Five times a week, 1; three and four times a week, 36; twice a week, 184; once a week, 780; once a fortnight, 107; once a month (or "seldom"), 302; never, 30.

Inquirers sat in cinemas with the children, and the answers to the questions were given freely. The chief replies to the question, "Why do you like going?" were: "For interest," "amusement," "to pass the time," "excitement," "thrills." The "thrills" were explained by the children as motor and horse racing, flying, cowboys, fighting, war.

Of a group of thirty-eight girls aged eleven, twenty "liked war pictures best." Nineteen boys in a group said they preferred "murder, war and Chicago gangster films," because they were so "thrilling." On the whole the favorite films were "comics," adventure and detective pictures coming next. Preferences were: Boys, detective, "comics," adventure, cowboy, war, history, nature; girls, comedy, adventure, detective, love stories, nature. Boys did not like love stories.

The report states that "an arresting feature is the recurring emphasis upon crime, war and what they term 'fighting pictures.'"

A girl of eleven wrote: "I like murder pictures best." Of fifty-five girls under fourteen, seventeen voted for war films. Of thirty-eight girls under eleven, twenty liked war films. Two groups of Girl Guides voted thus: Ages seven to ten, murder and "comics"; ages ten to sixteen, cowboy, murder and love.

FRANCE HONORS MEMORY OF "MAID OF ORLEANS

It was the 500th anniversary of the burning of Joan of Arc at Rouen, France. And here, in solemn tribute before the statue of "the Maid of Orleans," is shown French Premier Pierre Laval (in civilian attire, at left) after he had placed a wreath in the name of the city of Paris. A huge parade to the statue marked the French capital's observance of the day.

Dr. Charles J. Cameron, of Vancouver. Rev. C. S. McGaffin performed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, in the presence of immediate relatives only. Dr. George Kennedy, of London, Ontario, uncle of the bride, gave his niece in marriage, and Mr. Telford James was best man. The Misses Esther Eddy and Dalton Marpole were the bridesmaids, and Miss Phoebe Senkler played the wedding music. A largely attended reception was held at the Jericho Country Club, and Mr. and Mrs. Cameron left for a honeymoon on Vancouver Island. They will spend the next two months at Shawnigan Lake.

ALBERNI GIRL WED YESTERDAY

Miss Christina Redford Becomes Bride of Richard F. Diment

With quiet dignity of ceremony, the marriage was solemnized on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, of Christina Margaret, second daughter of the late James Redford and Mrs. A. Rochester and native daughter of Alberni, to Richard Frank Diment, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diment, "The Crib," View Royal, Victoria.

The service was performed by Rev A. McLean at the home of the bride's mother. Only immediate relatives of the family and intimate friends were present. Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William Redford, the bride wore a Martha gown of delphinium blue georgette, fashioned in flare godet skirt, ankle length, with bell sleeves and veiled lace corsage, the short-waisted effect marked by a narrow belt fastened with diamante buckle. Her brimmed hat was composed of soutache straw in harmonizing tones, appliqued in beige guipure lace. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and fern and wore the bridegroom's gifts, a signet ring and necklet of pearls. Matching slippers of silk brocade completed the ensemble.

Miss Effie Redford was her sister's attendant as bridesmaid, wearing a gown of honey-beige georgette, designed in similar mode with short new jacket attached, and transparent crinoline straw hat in tones to match her gown relieved with a coral-petalled posy at one side. She wore a coral necklet and carried a bouquet of pink pastel sweet-pea blossoms, also a Gainsboro purse in paisley colorings, the gift of the bridegroom. Mr. Gilbert Diment was best man.

Blue delphiniums were used in profusion in the floral decorative note of the living room and dining-room, combined with June roses and a three-tiered wedding cake centred the bride's table. Following the ceremony, a reception was held. Mrs. Rochester mother of the bride, receiving the guests attired in a smart ensemble of black and white silk.

Mr. and Mrs. Diment left later in the afternoon, by motor for Vancouver, en route to southern cities, the bride traveling in a tailor-made costume of beige homespun tweed. A green glace straw hat, with polka dots of tan and brown, and tie and matching accessories completed the costume. On their return they will reside at Victoria Quay, Alberni.

CARIBOO WOMAN PIONEER DEAD

Mrs. Rae L. Muller Was Postmistress at Barkerville For Years

Canadian Press

Quesnel, B.C., June 30.—Mrs. Rae Lucille Muller, postmistress and telegraph operator at Barkerville, is dead here, aged forty-six. Mrs. Miller was not only an outstanding woman in the Cariboo district, but an outstanding women of the type who have worked quietly in remote places in the building up of Canada.

A children's playground adjoining the post office occupied much of her attention. She gave time and money unstintingly wherever the pleasure and welfare of children were concerned. Many an old-timer, too, had reason to be grateful to her for a timely groubstake when he was down on his luck.

CEMETERY CARETAKER

Amid the scenes of pioneer and gold rush struggles, she sought to keep alive the memory of those who had labored in them. She was the self-appointed caretaker of the Barkerville cemetery for the past ten years, and was chiefly responisble for its restoration. Mainly as the result of her labors, flowering plants of almost every known color bloom in the historic burying ground on the slope of Williams Creek. She rediscovered graves long forgotten. Many of her hours, when the snow was off the ground, were spent in gathering wild flowers from the surrounding hills to be transplanted to some old-timer's grave, or in caring for bulbs and plants sent to her by relatives and friends in many parts of the North American continent.

A lover of animals and birds, no little portion of her earnings went to provide food for them. Mrs. Muller died after a two weeks' illness with cerebral hemmorhage. Her husband died three years ago.

Music Pupils Entertained—A very enjoyable time of music and games was spent when Mrs. G. M. Hick, L.A.B., 1409 Hillside Avenue, entertained her younger pupils with their mothers in the afternoon and the older pupils in the evening. Special mention must be made of the delightful little programme of pianoforte solos and duets given by the younger pupils of Mrs. Hick and Miss Florence Simpson, many of whom displayed much promise. Those taking part were: Edna and Phyllis Wilkinson, Bernard and Phyllis Hick, Grace and Hedley Rowell, Raymond and Lorne Fuller, Howard and Keith Sedgman, Florence and Berta Robertson, Beryl Churchill, Nancy Cameron, John Lumley, Bobby Price, Harold Trace, Kenneth Wellwood, Doris Anderson, Ross Brown, Peggy Sedgman, Jack Fawcett, Doris McBain, Mrs. Hick and Miss Simpson were the recipients of beautiful gifts from their respective pupils as a token of their love and appreciation.

DEAN SEES TREND HERE TOWARDS COMMUNISM

Changed Conditions in Russia Told in Lecture at Memorial Hall

Parental Love One Stabilizing Factor Under Soviet Rule, He Declares

"The strongest argument in favor of communism is that it eliminates waste," said Dean Quainton in his lecture on Russia before a capacity audience in Memorial Hall last evening.

"If we here are not committed to communism, we are at least moving toward it. The difference between us and Russia is that in Russia it is bolder.

"It is one of the travesties of our civilization that hundreds of our young men and women right here in Victoria who ought to marry, cannot afford it.

"If Russia's five-year plan succeeds, collectivism will sweep the world. Communism is not a new idea. Buddha, Moses, Christ have all shown the abuses of property. The early church tried communism, the difference between that and Russia's being that in the former it was voluntary, whereas the communism of Russia did not even look forward to or preach voluntary renunciation of property."

FREE LOVE FOUND ELSEWHERE

Dealing with free love in Russia and the expressed horror of it on the part of certain groups in this country, the Dean declared Russia was not the only country where free love was to be found. Russia considered her attitude towards free love more rational, as she recognized the condition and where the parents were unwilling to assume responsibility, took charge of the children, he said. He pointed to the close connection between the changed conception of family life and the changed attitude towards property, referring to the recent book of Havelock Ellis as authority for much of his information.

NOT AIMED AT ANNIHILATION

The Dean asserted communism could not be said to have made efforts to annihilate the family, as it admitted that at present the family could not be dispensed with. But, it was asked, how long could the family continue to fit in with communism? Family sentiment died hard in Russia and Russians loved children, but as private property was the great buttress of the family, with its underlying incentive to accumulate for the heirs, so must communism, with its ideal of common property tend to weaken the family. Today the mother, as well as the father, was expected to be an economic factor, the state, rather than the family, being the thing that mattered. So that the mother could be free for industrial life, the community kitchen, community laundry, communal school, communal nurse have taken the place of the old family life with the mother at the head of the household.

MANY MOTHERS WELCOME CHANGE

"Many Russian mothers welcome communal nurseries," the Dean went on. "Where parents desire, as they often do, they are allowed to go and feed their children. The point is that the family is now a voluntary instead of a compulsory unit in Russia. The communist considers the truest expression of the spirit of love between man and woman is to be found in free love. Couples can register as man and wife or not, as they wish. Whether registered or not, divorce is an easy matter, all that is required on the part of either of those wishing to withdraw from the union being to inscribe themselves out of the union. No legal consent was required, nor the consent of the other person to the compact needed."

FACTORS AGAINST FAMILY

The Dean said divorce in Russia was 1.6 to every ten marriages, with the state stepping in and making provision for the children. The child, whether born in or out of wedlock, is regarded as legitimate. Sometimes the mother got the child, with the father paying alimony, and sometimes the father got the child, with the mother paying alimony, the result of the new freedom for women.

As for the possibility of the extinction of the family in Russia, the Dean declared the odds were heavily against its continuance with private property going, the old religion collapsed, former sex standards gone, birth control legalized, women economically independent and many of the homes socialized.

PARENTAL LOVE STABILIZING

"The one stabilizing thing remaining is the love of the husband for the wife and the love of both for the child," he continued. "It is almost impossible to conceive of parental love being completely killed under communism, that parents would willingly give up their children completely to the state. Russia maintains that love flourishes best and most romantically in the communistic setting, where marriage for social position or financial betterment was impossible owing to the passing of private property."

HOME NOT EXTERMINATED

"It is not true that the home has been exterminated from Russia, although it is but a shadow of the old home, with the foot of the state instead of the hearthstone. Russian women are making great sacrifices, making them readily, for the sake of an ideal.

"Men can still in Russia engage in private business, but they are heavily taxed, this meaning a gigantic war between individualism and Communism. Nothing is more dangerous in Russia to-day than a display of opulence. That is a sound enough condition, for if anything made poverty bitter, it was the flaunting of wealth in its face. The intelligentsia of Russia was never an acquisitive class. Being at all times and in all places a lover of peace, the intellectual is reconciled so long as the country is not at war."

The Dean declared Russia was convinced that sooner or later she would be at war again, probably with England.

"If ever the nations go to war with Russia, it will be the ghastliest war the world had ever seen, with the women there as well as the men," he said.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

HERNIA IS COMMON DEFECT OF MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT

Umbilical hernias are one of the commonplace physical conditions with which infants are affected. A rather large proportion of babies have some degree of rupture. The condition is indicative of imperfect development and in almost every case is present at birth.

If the navel protrudes, it is because the muscular wall covering the abdomen is split (instead of being knitted firmly together), allowing the protrusion of the intestines under pressure. The object of any kind of treatment is to encourage the split to grow together, thus preventing strangulation of the intestines in this abnormal opening.

Mrs. A. M. asks, "What do you recommend for a protruding navel? My baby girl is one year old and her navel has always protruded, especially when she cries. The stump of the cord did not come off until she was two and one-half weeks old. How would you account for that? Could doctor or nurse be blamed? Might that be the cause of the protruding navel? I have kept this strapped with adhesive but it does not remedy the condition."

METHOD OF TREATMENT

The usual method of treating an umbilical hernia is to strap it. Wide adhesive is used and the protrusion is held firmly in place with the finger while the straps are adjusted. The straps are left on until they loosen or begin to fall off; then they are replaced. A discharging navel should not be strapped.

I see no connection between the hernia and the falling off of the stump. It is not unusual for the stump to take this long to dry and fall off. The size of the cord differs and it would take longer for a thick cord to dry and separate than for a thinner one. The hernia is an internal not an external condition, and is present at birth. It often goes unrecognized for several weeks, because of the navel dressing, and the tight binder usually used for from four to six weeks after baby is born.

CRYING EMPHASIZES PROTRUSION

Naturally, because this is a muscular defect, it shows up more prominently when the baby cries. Put your hand on any baby's stomach when he yells and notice the way the abdomen bulges. It is pretty generally conceded that crying does not cause a hernia, but simply makes it more apparent.

I suggest that you take the baby to a pediatrist and ask him what further steps you should take. If strapping has had no appreciable effect after twelve months, some other method of correction may be desirable. These are medical problems which you must leave to the judgment of your doctor. I am sending you the leaflets on "Speech Development," "Toilet Training," and "Traveling With Baby," for which you enclosed a stamped, addressed envelope. I trust they are helpful to you.

MOVIE CENSORS ARE UNDER FIRE

Ontario Catholics Want Divorce Scenes Eliminated From Films

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 29.—Charges that immoral pictures have been passed by the Ontario Board of Moving Picture Censors this year were made to-day by Mrs. Aurelien Belanger, speaking at the semi-annual congress of the association of ex-pupils of Catholic convents, of which she is president.

Following a brief address by Major J. C. Boylen, chairman of the Ontario board, Mrs. Belanger turned to him and said: "I want to tell you that you have passed immoral pictures and you have also passed a number of pictures where divorce is represented as a casual and every-day occurrence. The actions of the board in this respect are most reprehensible."

A resolution was passed calling on the provincial boards of censors to refuse to release any picture representing divorce as desirable or acceptable.

While praising the cinema as a great potential force for good and for education, Senator N. A. Belcourt deplored the abuses which had invaded it.

Rev. Fr. Levi Cote, O.M.I., chaplain of the film committee, attacked the increasing flow of gangster, free love, and divorce pictures. "The church does not wish to bar the cinema. It is established in society, and here to stay," he said.

"But the church has the right to classify motion pictures, and to tell its children not to see certain films that are dangerous to their morals."

Victoria Home-owners Enthuse Over the BEAUTY of This New Tile Finish

CHROMITE is more beautiful than tile. It is just as durable and it costs less than half. Here is what one enthusiastic Victoria home-owner says in a letter to us about the Chromite installation in the bathroom of his home. His name will be given on application.

"Dear Sirs:

"You will be interested, I am sure, in learning of the very fine job done by your Mr. Strable on the Chromite work at our house. One finds, sometimes, with products of this kind that the finished job doesn't quite live up to the pictures shown on the manufacturer's advertising literature. But the pictures we saw of Chromite do not convey a sense of its real beauty. From our experience we should judge that you are entirely justified in the claims you make for Chromite. At any rate, we are more than pleased with the installation in our house."

Ask to have our interesting Chromite exhibit brought to your home and an estimate of remodeling made without obligation. There is a wide variety of colors.

Bulgarians Told Treasury Empty

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 30.—Former Premier Kantbco Malinoff, who was designated to form a cabinet after the registration of the government of Premier Andrey Liaptcheff, to-day said the country was in a "desperate financial plight."

The new Premier declared the exchequer had no resources at its disposal and that the treasury was empty. Despite this condition, he said the government would attempt to surmount difficulties and would seek to gain the support of great powers, without which he said rehabilitation would be impossible.

Resignation of the previous cabinet followed last week's election, which was unfavorable to the government.

Value Of Body Sensations In Protecting Against Illness

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Many of our sensations are so distinct that we can recognize them easily; others are so obscure that few people really realize that they have them. In addition to being able to see, hear, smell and taste, we are able to feel pressure, to tell the difference between hot and cold and to feel pain. Besides these sensations there are those that come to us from muscles, from the semi-circular canals in the internal ear and sensations from internal organs. Our muscles and semi-circular canals help to tell us where we happen to be in space. They help us to balance ourselves and in other ways to live in a difficult environment.

The sense of taste is not merely bitter, salt, sweet and sour, but a combination of taste, odor and the feel of food upon the tongue. Our sense of color is not only the difference between white and black, but also all of the possible combinations of the spectrum. Odors are of innumerable quantities and qualities, and there are so many different kinds of odors that scientists have had difficulty in naming all of them. Indeed, so much depends on what is called consciousness, or the ability of the brain to receive and record sensation, that every human being differs from every other one in these qualities.

Physiologists divide all of the senses of the body into two groups—those which are projected to the exterior of the body, which include sight, hearing, taste, smell and the ability to tell the difference between hot and cold; and those which are projected to the interior of the body and which are therefore of the greatest importance in protecting the human being against serious illness and even death.

The sensations projected to the interior of the body include pain, which may be felt in any portion of the body, the muscle sense, the sensation of position in space, hunger, thirst, sex desire, fatigue, and other sensations from internal organs. Of course, a sense like the temperature sense may be felt on the exterior of the body or within the organs.

Because of the complex character of the construction of the human body, not one of the senses is perceived uncomplicated by others, except in scientific experimentation. Stimulation to the skin may come from a pin point, a blast of warm air, contact with a chemical like menthol, or from other stimuli.

The number of nerve tips associated with the perception of any sensation varies in various parts of the body. The most sensitive is the tip of the tongue, then follows the tip of the finger, various fingers varying in their ability. Then comes the middle of the palm, the forehead, the sternum or breast bone, the region along the spine, and finally the middle of the back. It is very difficult for a person to tell exactly what is touching him if the stimulus is applied to the middle of the back, whereas he can quite frequently tell by the sense of feel alone the nature of any stimulus applied to the finger-tip or to the tongue.

FOWLER ELECTED LOCAL DELEGATE TO CONVENTION

P. B. Fowler, past president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, was elected representative of that body to the convention of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce on September 7, 8, 9 and 10 in Regina, by the board of directors at their meeting yesterday afternoon.

During the meeting, R. W. Mayhew, president, James Parfitt, vice-president, and one other delegate were elected to represent the Victoria body at the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, to be held in Duncan on July 15 and 16.

Assessment of Victoria for membership in the association aroused considerable discussion. Members felt that owing to the depressed conditions, the amount paid by the city should not be $100, the sum sent last year. Further consideration of the matter was left in the hands of the delegates to take up with the associated boards at the convention.

Resolutions to be submitted by various groups on the Island were outlined. Included in them were two from Saanich asking that local wines and ciders might be sold without a permit and that the same might be distributed to beer parlors.

From the Malahat came resolutions endorsing the move to legalize sweepstakes. Another suggested an island of ten acres in Shawnigan Lake be made a national park and another dealt with the problem of Indians driving motor cars.

Duncan will submit requests for better freight rates, as well as a motion to prevent the burning of slash in game bird areas during the springtime. That board would also restock certain streams with trout and would legalize lotteries, drafts of resolutions revealed.

Merge Groups Here To Study Unemployment

Directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon decided to have the special chamber co-operate with the city group which will study the question. The action was taken at the meeting of the directors yesterday afternoon at which unemployment was discussed.

During the meeting, the body endorsed a letter from the Vancouver Board of Trade, embodying resolutions in favor of the immediate national registration of all unemployed, and the assumption by the Federal Government of responsibility for the present situation. In the later move, the Vancouver board urged the Federal Government take immediate steps to initiate federal undertakings in co-operation with the provinces and municipalities towards complete absorption of unemployed workers.

Cities and municipalities were unable to continue the heavy expenditures the unemployed were causing, the Vancouver letter stated.

The Vancouver body had set up a permanent committee not only to seek relief for the present condition, but to find a permanent solution for the evil, the letter stated.

Copies of the communication had been forwarded to all parts of the Dominion.

AT THE THEATRES

HAVE WALKED OVER 192 HOURS

Husband Among Playhouse Competitors After Wife Drops Out

The Playhouse Walkathon at noon to-day passed 192 hours of walking.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock Mrs. Harrison had to give up. Mr. Harrison is walking solo. An addition to the staff has been made by the appointment of George Brydon as master of ceremonies. Again to-day the walkers will be taken for an outing similar to that of yesterday, when they strolled along Fort, Douglas and Yates Streets.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

"Thar She Blows," is the cry that goes up when the crazy crew sights the spouting great white whale, Moby Dick, so long pursued by mad Alab. John Barrymore stars in this role in "Moby Dick," the Warner Bros., and Vitaphone epic of whaling days now showing at the Columbia Theatre. Lloyd Bacon directed.

COLISEUM THEATRE

The film introduces an unusual problem—that of a young girl deliberately ruining her reputation in a futile attempt to marry the man she loves. Local audiences are warm in their praise of the film.

CAPITOL THEATRE

"The Lady Who Dared," a First National and Vitaphone special with Billie Dove as its star, is now playing at the Capitol Theatre. The supporting cast includes a number of screen favorites. Sidney Blackmer plays the role of the husband who neglects his wife to the extent that she just misses being involved in a huge blackmailing scheme. Conway Tearle is cast in the part of an interesting adventurer who forms the third side of the triangle, while Judith Vosselli and Cosmo Kyrle Bellew head a band of blackmailers and smugglers. Others in the cast are Lloyd Ingraham, Ivan Simpson and Mathilde Comont.

DOMINION THEATRES

Robert Montgomery scores fresh triumphs as the salty hero of "Shipmates," the thrilling Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film which is showing at the Dominion Theatre.

In the featured role of the navy comedy-romance, Montgomery crosses the threshold of stardom, winning new laurels and proving his ability to carry a production on his shoulders. He is entirely without self-consciousness and his characterization of the sailor-hero is one long to be associated with his career.

S. M. CARDENAS IS LON CHANEY OF MEXICO NOW

Mexico City, June 30 (Times Mail Correspondent). — Mexico harbors a man who has attained much fame by glorying in an inversion of personal vanity. He is Salvador Melgarejo Cardenas, ex-medical student, reformed soldier, and now an actor. He avers that the peak of his ambition is to make himself the world's ugliest man. He calls his creed "the beautification of personal ugliness." He has capitalized this strange practice. Cardenas is appearing in small variety theatres here, calling himself "The Man of a Thousand Faces." He has become a sensation.

Cardenas's performance is remarkable. He acts entirely without make-up, and impersonates excellently all manner of facially unhandsome people. In his day, to judge from photographs of himself before he became "ugly crazy," Cardenas was moderately handsome. Unlike other men, he dedicated his time and his talents to making his face hideous, instead of improving his looks. He admits the late Lon Chaney inspired him to take such great liberties with his countenance. It was his determination to excel the famous American actor, by attaining facial hideousness by "natural means." He claims highly cultivated will power enables him to twist his face into any shape he desires.

Cardenas's story is a strange one. He left a medical school to join the army. He fought with distinction in several sanguinary battles of the civil wars that tore his country up to a few years ago. A Lon Chaney motion picture inspired him to abandon soldiering and become a thespian. For many years, Cardenas eked out a living as a vaudeville performer in small provincial theatres, the while laboring to perfect his art. He extracted several teeth that interfered with his grotesque facial manipulations, using pincers to perform the operation. He can now put his nose in his mouth.

TUGBOAT STRIKE THOUGHT ENDED

Meeting Decides to Do Nothing About Trouble Between Operators and Association

Vancouver, June 30.—At a meeting of the Towboat Owners' Association held yesterday to consider a proposal toward settling the strike of tugboat masters and mates, it was decided to do nothing. The owners refused to negotiate with the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, and also with the Department of Labor. They state that they will deal with their own men and will consider their applications for work if openings offer.

The owners also state they are not now willing to agree to a board of conciliation. They asked for one at the opening of the trouble, but the men refused, and since then the tugboat situation has developed to a point where they say there is no further need for negotiations.

F. E. Harrison, western representative for the Department of Labor, has been striving, since before the strike, to bring about a settlement, and for a time acted as chairman of negotiations between representatives of the guild, the owners, and the marine engineers. These negotiations wre broken off by the owners, and no further steps toward settlement were taken until recently when Mr. Harrison again succeeded in obtaining a joint conference. As a result of this meeting the Towboat Owners' Association met on Monday and outlined its position, as above.

APPEALS SENTENCE FOR THEFT OF CAR

Herbert Crofts Asks Court of Appeal to Reduce His Two-year Sentence

Appeal of Herbert Crofts, former soldier here, against the sentence of two years in jail, imposed by Judge Lampman, for stealing motor car No. 12301, of Alfred Start, Esquimalt, and changing the number plate, was carried to the court of appeal by Hon. R. L. Maitland, K.C., his lawyer.

"There was no evidence Crofts knew the automobile had been stolen and as there was reasonable doubt in his case, the accused should be given the benefit of the doubt," Mr. Maitland said.

H. A. Beckwith, as prosecutor, opposed lightening the sentence given here by Judge Lampman.

Chief Justice Macdonald said the Court of Appeal would reserve its decision.

OTHER CASES ON

W. J. Taylor, K.C., with A. J. Patton, to-day commenced the appeal on behalf of Jos. E. Andrews against the judgment of Judge Lampman awarding John Lefevre and Alice Lefevre $400 in connection with the disputes over mortgages totaling $3,735 advanced on a partly completed house. F. E. Fowkes, counsel for the Lefevres, is resisting the appeal.

Argument was concluded by D. S. Tait, counsel for W. J. Taylor, K.C., and by Harold B. Robertson, K.C., counsel for Mabel Hope Eberts, widow, over the accounting of the business affairs of the legal firm of Eberts and Taylor, in which her husband, the late Hon. D. M. Eberts, was member. The court reserved its decision.

Court To Hold Lindeborg Money For New Suits

W. J. de B. Farris, K.C., representing the estate of Hiram Stevenson of Vancouver, was to-day successful in his opposition before Mr. Justice Fisher in the Supreme Court here to the application of F. S. Pratt, counsel for the estate of Dan Lindeborg, to have $21,000 remaining in court since the Harris trial, paid back to the estate from which it was garnisheed.

The original action was started by P. J. Sinnott, who garnisheed and had paid into court $100,000 of the $300,000 Lindeborg and three associates received for the Big Missouri mine from the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. William Harris of Port Angeles, after an action which went to the Supreme Court of Canada, was finally awarded $50,000 as his share as a partner. Dan Lindeborg and the other partners, Hiram Stevenson, Dan Proudfoot and Andrew Lindeborg, are now all dead and present actions are being carried on by their estates.

Mr. Pratt said the Lindeborg estate was valued at $160,000 and was thus good for the money at any time there was another action. Mr. Farris argued the best place for the money to be held pending further actions among the various parties as to its division, was in the court. On the postponement order, Mr. Farris agreed to issue a writ on behalf of the Stevenson estate and get another action started within two weeks.

Substitution of Players Again Advocated for Football

England - Vancouver Match Saturday Spoiled by Injury to Player

Weaker Clubs Showed Unexpected Strength in Major Baseball

St. Louis Browns and Brooklyn Robins Capture Week's Honors

AFTER reading the account of Saturday's football match at Vancouver between the touring English players and the Mainland All-stars, the time appears opportune to again speak in favor of substitutes in soccer. At Vancouver, the home players offered the Englishmen their keenest competition to date, but halfway through the match Dickie Stobbart, one of their mainstays, left the field seriously injured, and was out for the remainder of the match. The English team lost Smith at the same time but he returned in ten minutes and completed the match.

* * *

The Mainland players enjoying a one-goal lead were able to hold their own with ten men until halftime. However, after the start of the second half, they weakened through the loss of their eleventh man, and the touring players ran through four goals to win 4-1.

* * *

How much better the match would have been if Vancouver had been able to substitute a player for Stobbart. It would have provided the English eleven with stiffer competition and would have made the match more interesting from the standpoint of the spectators. Many associations and clubs in Canada favor the use of substitutes, but the authorities in the Old Country will not listen to the proposal. Every time the idea is broached to them they come back with the argument that it is not a fair rule. There is no reason why Canadians should not go ahead and use the substitutes and let the Old Country do as it likes. The west has always led in sport. In ice hockey, the Patricks introduced many new rules and the east laughed. But all those rules were adopted by the N.H.L., and in time Britain will use subs in football.

The supposedly weak clubs of the major baseball leagues rose in their might last week and drew down the major share of the honors, both in winning games and hitting the ball. The St. Louis Browns who have been hanging around the lower portion of the American League standing, and the Brooklyn Robins, who have been doing little better in the National League campaign, vied with each other for the best records of the week.

* * *

St. Louis won nine games and lost only one to top the younger circuit, while Brooklyn led its own league with seven victories and one defeat. More trailers rose along with these two. The Phillies and Cincinnati Reds shared second place honors in the National, each with five victories and three defeats. The Cleveland Indians won five games and lost two for their second place in the American.

* * *

The New York Yankees, who got only an even break in their ten games, leaped into the picture when it came to slugging. The Yanks scored seventy-two runs, a good many more than any other team in either league and pounded out thirteen home runs. They had a total of 104 hits, the Browns beating them out by one safety. St. Louis took second place in scoring, with sixty-four runs, while the Chicago Cubs led the National League with forty-nine tallies, one more than Brooklyn. The Phillies hit safely 101 times. The Browns also figured in the home run list with nine. The New York Giants hit eight and Brooklyn seven.

* * *

On the defensive side, the Yanks and Browns fared poorly, while Brooklyn, Cleveland and Washington took the leading roles. The Yanks, making a total of twenty-one errors, allowed their opponents sixty-nine runs, getting two undesired high marks for the week. Washington shared fielding honors with the St. Louis Cards and Giants, each making only five errors. The Senators and Cleveland each held their rivals to twenty-two runs, while Brooklyn's opponents scored only twenty-four times. Pittsburgh was the weakest National League team on the defence, making fifteen errors and allowing its opponents forty-seven runs. The Giants and Detroit Tigers were the low scoring teams for the period, making only twenty-six runs apiece. The Giants hit only fifty-eight times.

The biggest fistic week of the season will come to a double-barreled climax on Friday and Saturday at Cleveland and Reno. At Cleveland Friday night, Max Schmeling, Germany, will defend his heavyweight championship against Young Stribling, while on Saturday at Reno, Jack Dempsey will promote a twenty-round heavyweight struggle between Max Baer, young Californian, and Paolino Uzcudun.

SONS DEFEAT TILLICUMS IN CLOSE BATTLE

Second Place Occupants in Senior Baseball League Score 4 to 2 Victory

Cann and Holden Give Fine Pitching Performances; Errors Costly to Losers

Defeating the Tillicums 4 to 2 at the Royal Athletic Park yesterday evening, Sons of Canada remained in the running for first place in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League. The Sons are in second position behind the league leading Elks, although the latter have a firm hold on first place.

Although he was beaten, Holden gave a fine performance on the mound for the Tillicums, striking out fourteen and allowing eight hits. However, his teammates fell down at critical moments to allow the Sons runs. Lloyd Cann, who twirled for the Sons, was also in rare form, allowing seven hits and striking out eight. Cann was given first class support in the field, his mates pulling off two fine double plays to kill rallies.

After three innings of scoreless ball each team scored a run in the fourth. The Sons tallied when Holman reached first on Worthington's error and crossed the plate on singles by Collins and F. Campbell. The Tillicums tied the count in their half when Robinson doubled and scored on Holden's single.

SONS TAKE LEAD

In the seventh the Sons gained a two-run lead. Four hits, one for extra bases by Colin Campbell, gave the Canadians their tallies. An error by Latham gave the Sons another run in the eighth, while the Tillicums added their final tally in the ninth.

LATE RALLY BRINGS WIN TO NEWSIES

The Times Retains Westholme Softball Lead By 9 to 8 Win Over Todds

Jokers Hold Second Place By Defeating Aztecs 11 to 5; Moose Beat Colwood

In one of the most thrilling games of the year The Times kept hold of a one-point margin on top of the Westholme Softball League yesterday evening by defeating Todds 9-8, while the Jokers were hammering out a 11-5 victory over the Aztecs. Moose took Colwood 6-5 in the other encounter.

The Times came from far behind in the last two innings to win the game against Todds. A five-run rally in the last half of the eighth tied the score at 6 to 6. Todds added a couple in the first half of the ninth but a timely hit with two on bases evened things up for The Times in the final canto and the winning run came in on a sacrifice.

The Jokers, back in winning form, defeated the Aztecs decisively for the first time this year. In their former encounters these two squads have taken one game each by a lone run and tied the other.

A TIGHT GAME

Colwood and the Moose had a tight game from start to finish and both squads fought hard to the end.

With only three games left in the second half schedule, the race has developed into a neck and neck fight between The Times and Jokers for the honors. The Times have a one-point margin owing to a drawn game played by the Jokers. On Thursday night these two squads hook up at Beacon Hill Park in what may be the deciding game of the round.

After the last glove goes swishing through the air, Stribling will desert the camp that has been his home since early May, and go into seclusion, occupying a residence in an exclusive residential district of Cleveland.

Ma Stribling and his pa will accompany him, with ma doing the cooking and otherwise caring for her son until he jumps into the ring to meet Schmeling in the fifteen-round title battle in Cleveland's new municipal stadium Friday night. Stribling attended a ball game yesterday.

Schmeling enjoyed a day of rest yesterday, preparatory to finishing up his training to-day and to-morrow. The smiling young German intends to do only light work to-day, boxing possibly four or five rounds. The finish to-morrow will also be of the lightest nature. Schmeling intends to loaf and play his usual game of golf on Thursday and depart for Cleveland by motor on Friday morning, arriving just in time to weigh in at noon.

REFEREE NAMED

The referee question was settled to the satisfaction of all concerned yesterday with the selection of George Blake, Los Angeles, as the third man in the ring. Blake started for Cleveland yesterday evening. He will arrive in Chicago Thursday morning and depart immediately by plane for Cleveland. Blake enjoys an enviable record in boxing, for his honesty and respect of others in the sport.

Blake, himself an excellent boxer, has the distinction of having developed two United States Olympic champions, who later became world professional titleholders. They are Fidel la Barba and Jackie Fields. Blake taught them to box while they were members of the Los Angeles Club team, of which Blake was boxing instructor. Blake holds a referee's license as well as a manager's license on the Pacific Coast.

Bob Edgren, noted boxing authority and member of the California State Athletic Commission, regards the selection of Blake as referee as a master stroke. Edgren regards Blake as the outstanding referee on the Pacific Coast, if not in America. Blake has not refereed much, due to managerial connections with La Barba. He refused the assignment when it was first offered, but was later prevailed upon to accept it. The commission also named the two judges and alternate referee, but their names were withheld until the day of the fight.

TACKLES PUT FREBERG DOWN EIGHT TIMES

Gus Sonnenberg Butts Giant Swede Into Submission in Bout at Seattle

Freberg Took First Fall in Third Round; 40,000 See Londos Beat Steele

Seattle, June 30.—Gus Sonnenberg, former heavyweight wrestling champion, subdued John Freberg, Chicago, with a flying tackle in the fourth round of a heavyweight wrestling exhibition yesterday evening and took the match. Freberg was unable to return to the ring.

Freberg took the first fall in the third round, pinning Sonnenberg with a body slam. In the next round, Sonnenberg sent Freberg crashing to the mat eight times with butts and tackles to the stomach and ribs before a fall was awarded.

Bob Kruse, Portland, won an unpopular verdict over Hans Schroeder New York, in the five-round semi-final with a fall in the third round.

New York, June 30.—Jim Londos recognized in several states as heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, has repelled the challenge of young Ray Steele of Glendale, Calif. for the second time in less than six months.

Londos pinned Steele to the mat in the Yankee Stadium yesterday evening in one hour, nine minutes, twelve seconds, while a crowd estimated at close to 40,000 looked on. The champion beat Steele in little more than an hour in a title match in Madison Square Garden during the winter season.

While receipts estimated at $63,000 fell far short of pre-battle estimates the crowd was believed to have broken all attendance records for a wrestling match. Part of the receipts is to be turned over to the Hearst milk fund.

Londos, on the defensive during the first half of the battle, finally gained a double arm lock on Steele and pinned the Californian to the canvas in short order. Londos weighed 201 pounds Steele 212.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 30.—Henri Deglane, claimant to the world heavyweight wrestling title, yesterday evening defeated Frank Judson, Brooklyn in straight falls. Deglane took the first in 19.52 with a toe hold, and the second in 9-18 with a similar hold, when Judson gave up.

The former captured the inter-battery tug of war challenge cup, while the latter gained first honors in the twelve-pounder dummy loader competition.

The softball game between the coast batteries and the field batteries was won by the coast section.

Other events included in the programme were a wheelbarrow race, a three-legged race, kiddies' race, ladies' race; boot, shoe and puttee race, old soldiers' race and a sack race.

In the afternoon refreshments were served to a large crowd of spectators.

Montreal Maroons Beat Toronto In Box Lacrosse Tilt

University School Cricketers Leave On B.C. Tour To-night

Will Commence Series With Match Against Vancouver To-morrow

After Playing Vancouver Junior All-stars on Dominion Day, Victoria Team to Meet Men's Elevens of Interior in Five Other Fixtures; Have unbroken Record of Victories Against Island School Squads For Last Two Years; Eleven Includes Many Promising Young Players; Will Be First Tour Staged By School.

After completing two seasons during which they have defeated every school team that has taken the field against them, University School's cricket eleven will open its first provincial tour in Vancouver to-morrow with a full-day match against the Vancouver Juniors. Following their match there the students will go to Kamloops for the first of a series of five games against men's teams of the interior.

Included in their schedule are matches against Vernon, a combined team of Vernon and Lavington, a select team playing under the president of the Kelowna Cricket Club and one representing the club proper. Following this fixture they will return to Vernon to play Lavington in their final encounter.

The lads will leave Victoria with Major Ian Simpson, headmaster of the school, on to-night's boat for Vancouver, playing an all-day match there to-morrow. In the evening the squad will be joined by Reg. Wenman, sports master, who will remain in the city to play on the all-star Victoria team against Vancouver to-morrow, and will fly across to the mainland to take charge of the school eleven for the remainder of the trip.

SCHEDULE

Following their game in the Terminal City, the travelers will catch the 10 o'clock train to Kamloops, which town they will reach at 7.10 o'clock Thursday morning. In the afternoon they will take the field against the Kamloops Cricket Club. After spending the night in Kamloops, the team will proceed the next morning to Vernon, playing there in the afternoon.

The following day the school is scheduled to meet a picked team from Vernon and Lavington cricket clubs in the afternoon.

After a break on Sunday, the students will journey to Kelowna on Monday for a game against a team selected by the president of that city's club. On Tuesday they will clash with the regular Kelowna eleven.

On their return journey they will stop at Vernon for their last match with Lavington.

While the team will be representing a Victoria school, it will include a good representation of young western Canada cricketers. Three of the members are residents of this city, three have their homes in Vancouver, three are Calgary boys and the remaining three represent Edmonton, Regina and Winnipeg respectively.

OUTSTANDING STAR

The outstanding star on the squad will be young Jim Weaver of Edmonton, brilliant all-round man, who last Saturday distinguished himself by scoring a century against the Wanderers in a friendly match. He is both a strong bowler and batsman and captains the eleven.

I. M. Drum, one of the three Victorians, is a smart left-hand bowler, with plenty of speed.

J. G. Mackid of Calgary is a useful all-round man, particularly valuable at bat, while his brother, B. S. Mackid, is a very fair change bowler and good fielder.

A. L. Mercer, a Vancouverite, is outstanding in the field, while P. K. Allen a fellow townsman, shows promise both as a batsman and bowler. W. S. Leggatt, the other Terminal City player, is a forcing bat and good in the field.

R. C. Coleman, Winnipeg, is a young cricketer of promise, both at bat and as a bowler. He should improve with the experience he receives during the series, and will doubtless prove useful on the tour.

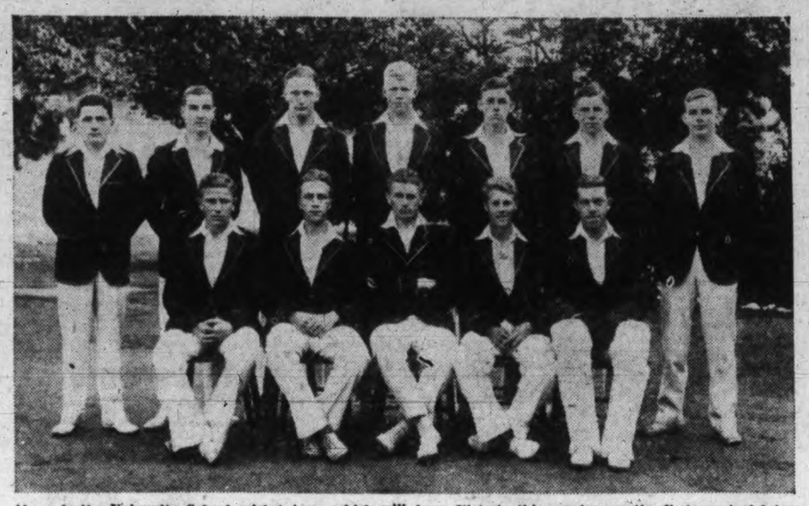
J. A. Richardson, Victoria, is a dependable batsman, as is L. J. Hess, Calgary, the team's wicket keeper.

EXPERT COACHING

Under the coaching of Reg. Wenman and Eric Quainton, both masters at the school and members of former British Columbia interprovincial "rep" teams, the boys have been showing rapid improvement during the last two seasons, having an unbeaten record against Brentwood and Shawnigan for two years. The two coaches have a thorough knowledge of the game and have imparted much of their skill to the youngsters.

Unfortunately, E. C. Hamber, one of the shining lights on the team, and one of the boys who has entered the century list as a batter, and A. H. Alexander will be unable to make the trip. Both deserve their places on the squad, but found it impossible to make the tour.

SCHOOL CRICKET ELEVEN TO START FIRST PROVINCIAL TOUR TO-NIGHT



Above is the University School cricket team which will leave Victoria this evening on the first provincial tour ever conducted by the school. The team will play Vancouver Juniors to-morrow in their opening fixture at Brockton Point and will proceed to the interior where a strenuous schedule of matches has been drawn up. The last will be played on July 8. Reading from left to right the players are: Standing, R. C. Coleman, J. A. Richardson, J. C. Holmes (vice-captain), W. S. Leggat, P. K. Allen, B. S. Mackid, I. M. Drum; sitting, J. G. Mackid, A. W. Mercer, J. L. Weaver (captain), R. L. Poyntz and L. J. Hess. In the course of their trip they will play six games, in five of which they will meet men's elevens.

MANCHESTER SEES FLY-WEIGHT FIASCO

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times

London—Jackie Brown, of Manchester, the British flyweight champion, won on points his contest with Lucian Popesco, of Roumania, European flyweight champion, at Belle Vue, Manchester. The contest, it is stated, will not be recognized as being for the European title, but Brown declared: "I claim the championship from to-night." Popesco was half a pound overweight at the weigh-in. He was given an hour in which to get down his weight, but went to a hotel and had a meal. Later it was stated that he refused to weigh in a second time and was prepared to forfeit the £50 weight money. Popesco made no attempt to get down the weight, his explanation being that the International Boxing Union, of which he is a licensed boxer, do not regard the match as a title fight.

There was another hitch just before the fight. A wrangle in the dressing-room wasted twenty minutes, Popesco's party refusing to pay any weight forfeit. Then the promoters offered to pay Brown £25 out of their own pockets, but the Manchester boy said, "No. I don't want to stick the club up. Let the fight go on."

Willow Shortage Worries Cricketers As Season Opens

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times

London—The opening of the 1931 cricket season is remarkable for the difficulty which is confronting bat manufacturers in obtaining suitable wood for their work.

For several years there has been a considerable shortage of willow trees, but the situation has been made more difficult by a disease which is attacking trees in the main centres of the industry. Known as "watermark disease," it is likely, if it continues unchecked, to have serious consequences upon the supply of cricket bats and, in all probability, upon their prices.

The willow-growing country in England stretches from the Lea Valley in Hertfordshire, along the rivers Gipping and Orwell in Suffolk, and from Chelmsford to the North Sea. During the last few years the cricket bat willow has been increasingly subject to a serious infectious bacterial disease which causes the crown to die back, and usually results in the death of the entire tree. It derives its name of "watermark" from a dark watery stain which appears in the wood, making it useless for the manufacture of bats. The worst ravages of the disease have occurred along the valleys of the rivers Chelmer and Lea. A fully grown willow tree is worth from £10 to £15.

APPEAL TO GOVERNMENT

A London manufacturer of cricket bats told The Daily Telegram that the difficulty in securing good cricket bat willow was undoubtedly increasing every year. "It is no good our trying to get it from abroad," he said. "English willow is the only kind which is any use. They have tried growing it in India, but the atmosphere seems to be too hot, with the result that there is no drive in the bat. I have two men at work all the year round hunting for likely willow. They travel about East Anglia, and sometimes nowadays they work for a month without finding any suitable wood. The demand for cricket bats is as great as ever, and unless the blight is stopped the position will become extremely difficult."

With a view to checking this menace to the bat-making industry a meeting of growers was called recently at Chelmsford, and it was decided to ask the Minister for Agriculture to make an order that all trees attacked should be cut down immediately.

New York Yanks Pay $70,000 For Players

New York, June 30.—The Sun says the New York Yankees paid $70,000 for the releases of Jack Saltzgaver, second baseman, and John Murphy, pitcher, of the St. Paul club of the American Association, outbidding the Chicago Cubs for their services.

Rosenbloom Wins

Philadelphia, June 20.—Maxie Rosenbloom, New York, 174, light heavyweight champion, defeated Billy Jones, 175½, Philadelphia, yesterday evening, in a ten-round bout here. The title was not at stake.

Bowling Doubles To Start Later

The morning doubles to-morrow at the Beacon Hill bowling greens will start at 9.30 o'clock and not at 9 as previously stated.

SPORTS By JIMMY THOMPSON

WHEN A WHITE JOCKEY RUBS A COLORED JOCKEY'S HEAD, THE RACE IS IN THE BAG

Superstition is first cousin to the race track. When George Ellis rode Mate to victory in the Preakness recently, it was called a surprise victory. Yet behind the whole event there was an element of superstition. As you will probably remember, the event was supposed to be a two-horse race between Twenty Grand and Equipoise. Ellis is a good jockey, what they call a money jockey, just the same way that they called Eddie Collins the moneyed ball player. When the stakes are high, Ellis is said to have a head on him and is all heart. In this case he made doubly sure. There are very few negro jockeys on the track to-day and the only real good one is listed as R. Simpson and is well known, particularly around New Orleans and Maryland. But here's the big story: one hour before the running of the Preakness at Pimlico, Ellis walked over to the colored boy's barn and said, "Let me rub your head. I want to get lucky." This is an ancient track superstition. Simpson obliged and said laughing, "Take a good rub, white boy, you'll need it to beat the big hoss to-day." But all the same it did the trick.

Watching the Majors

Four hits in seven times at bat in yesterday's double victory over the Yanks enabled Eddie Morgan, Cleveland swatsmith, to boost his average and strengthen his hold on second place. Babe Ruth, leader, could collect only three hits in eight tries, and saw his mark drop to .404.

Virgil Davis, the Phillies' big catcher, got two out of four to hold third place in the batting marathon.

OTHER PEOPLE'S VIEWS

UNEMPLOYMENT

To the Editor:—Civilization is on trial to-day, and we must either admit that the pruning-knife of war, pestilence and famine is necessary to thin out the population, or find a solution to the problem which imposes want and suffering upon a world wherein all the requisites of our civilized state exist in abundance.

Up to the present the problem has proved insoluble. Personally, I am convinced that the real obstacle is lack of "will to find a solution." Perhaps the following incident will explain my meaning:

During a recent discussion of taxation measures, a friend of mine, who recognized the right of governments to impose taxes, expressed the belief that the gasoline tax was the most statesman-like measure ever introduced. This gentleman owns a car; he uses it for business and private purposes, and his firm pays for every ounce of "gas" that goes into its tank. The "will" to provide the government with revenue existed, but—let gasoline supply it!

Governments and employers want prosperity, so do workers and would-be workers, but when conferences are held each side deals with the matter from a totally differenet angle. Employer and employee classes meet on a verbal battlefield to contest and offset the strategy and tactics of each other. Each genuinely desires to find a solution, but each is governed by the gasoline complex of my friend.

The first essential to success is a change in the mental attitude of both sections. Personal advantage should be forgotten, and all should meet with minds cleared of prejudice—seeking only a remedy for a defect which is threatening to disrupt the social structure.

The manner of approach is important. Men who are suffering from lack of work with its attendant evils are incapable of doing justice to their cause. I say this advisedly! Having been "through the mill" myself, I know the mental condition which results from the strain of continued unemployment. The awful fear, which becomes intensified with each new dawn, is far worse than anything experienced on the battlefield. Hope is lost, the future holds no glimmer of light, and the mind is obsessed with the belief that ultimate disaster is certain.

For this reason I believe that employees' representatives at conference should be men who have "touched rock bottom," but who are now employed and whose minds are free from immediate fear. Nor should government and employer representatives forget that men whose families are suffering from want are likely to compare their respective lots when opinions differ. Mental pictures of poverty-stricken and prosperous homes are not conducive to diplomatic speech, and this fact should be realized and allowed for when the atmosphere becomes torrid. A well-fed man has the advantage over his ill-fed opponent, and he should be able to control himself more easily.

The intention of instituting public works to provide immediate employment is laudable; but it only touches the fringe of a continually recurring problem. Let me reiterate my belief that a solution of the difficulty can be found if the "will to do so exists." And at all conferences the personnel should be in a state of mind to permit of clear, logical thought and discussion.

If no solution can be found, civilization will have reached the breaking strain. Readjustment is necessary, and any suggestion along that line should be discussed freely and frankly without recourse to charges of revolution and disruption. The need for toleration, vision and courageous action is great, and the time to exercise those qualities is now.

Some of my readers may think that I am suggesting the impossible, and that human nature must be changed before a proper mental attitude can be created which will enable men to discuss the problem sensibly. If such is the case, civilization has failed, and there is no hope other than the pruning-knife of war, pestilence and famine.

Rookie's Timely Hit Gives Cards Win Over Giants

Jimmy Collins, Who replaced Bottomley on First Base For St. Louis, Comes Through in Ninth, Driving in Pair of runs to defeat New York 5 to 3; Brooklyn Chalks Up Fifth Straight Win; Klein Defeats Cubs At Philadelphia; Washington and Philadelphia Both Defeated in American.

Although Jim Bottomley has recovered from the injury that knocked him out of the St. Louis Cardinal lineup several weeks ago, his chances of reclaiming his old post at first base for the National League champions appear to be slim.

Jimmy Collins, the slugger from Rochester who got his chance when Bottomley went out, continues to hold down the initial cushion like a veteran and his hitting has been hard and timely. As long as he can maintain his present clip, it is doubtful if Manager Gabby Street will see fit to put the veteran "Sunny Jim" back in the lineup.

If Collins makes the grade, he will be the second rookie to break through the veteran combination that started the campaign for the champions. Pepper Martin, another from the Rochester "farm," has fought his way to a regular berth in the outfield.

Collins supplied the punch that beat the Giants, 5 to 3 yesterday, in the first game of their "crucial" series at the polo grounds. With two out in the ninth and the score tied, he nicked Carl Hubbell for a clean single that drove across the winning runs. The victory increased the Cardinals' lead over the Giants to two and a half games.

ROBINS WIN FIFTH

The Brooklyn Robins, meantime, chalked up their fifth straight win at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 4, and to-day were only a half game behind the third place Chicago Cubs, who dropped a slugfest to the Phillies, 11 to 10. Johnny Frederick's homer with the bases loaded, was the punch that stopped the Reds.

The Cubs ran into too much Chuck Klein at Philadelphia. The Phillies' brilliant left fielder drove across five runs with a homer, triple and single, and himself scored four.

Ray Kremer's four-hit pitching gave the Pirate a 4 to 2 victory over the Boston Braves, their second in eight starts. Zachary yielded fourteen hits, including a homer by Phillips.

Washington's Senators passed up another opportunity to whittle down the Philadelphia Athletics' lead over the American League field when they dropped the series final to Chicago, 9 to 7. Although hit hard, Vic Frasier went the route to get the decision over three Washington veterans.

Detroit scored its first victory of the year over the Athletics, 6 to 5, when Roy Johnson bunted safely in the ninth, moved to third on Doljack's single and crossed the plate on Alexander's outfield fly. Johnson hit a home run off Rommel in the fifth.

The St. Louis Browns' winning streak was snapped at eight straight when Wilcy Moore, the Red Sox veteran, set them down, 4 to 2. Goose Goslin made four of the eight hits off Moore, who had a shut out until the ninth.

Cleveland took both ends of a double bill with the Yankees, 15 to 6 and 4 to 2. Four members of the Yank mound staff were hammered for sixteen hits in the first, including a triple, double and single by Willie Jamm. Mel Harder allowed only five hits in the nightcap, while his mates bunched six of Lefty Gomez. Babe Ruth hit his eighteenth home run of the year in the first tilt with one one.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, June 30.—Wheat—Started lower this morning, based on weakness in Liverpool, good general rains throughout western Canada, being very heavy in certain districts, and to less favorable political news from abroad. Prices on the extreme dip were ⅞ to ¾ below the close on Monday and were into the daily bids. This brought in a little support and the market reacted fractionally.

Trade volume was light and largely local, and mostly inclined to follow the trend in Chicago, which market was somewhat firmer than Winnipeg. There was no disposition to press wheat until the Farm Board announcement is issued and which is now expected on Wednesday, July 1, while the Winnipeg market is closed. There was a little export business working, seaboard houses taking moderate amounts of July wheat at around 62 cents.

Extreme high temperatures still prevailed in the south, and reports coming in state that the oats crop has been hard hit and possibly some of the later winter wheat that is still in the dough stage. Also, the extreme heat is not doing the corn any good. General precipitation in Alberta, Saskatchewan and western Manitoba will undoubtedly be very beneficial in many ways, but more particularly to the coarse grains and pastures, and will probably prevent a serious feed situation.

There was only a fair demand for cash wheat locally, offerings were not pressing and spreads were mostly unchanged. Local exporters did nothing of any account overnight, but seaboard interests reported a moderate business, and this was reflected in the market here later, and was probably sufficient to take the slack out of the market. Flour was very dull, only an occasional small export sale being reported.

Broomhall reported that the buying of foreign wheat by Europeans generally was quiet, with conditions of European crops appreciably improved during the past two weeks. Reduced crops in exporting countries should have a greater influence as the season advances, unless Russia gets a bumper harvest.

Should the Farm Board decide to hold their supplies of 200,000,000, some price advance is to be expected, but even then there will be no shortage of wheat at present. Winnipeg futures closed ⅝ to ¾ lower.

CHICAGO

(By Logan & Bryan)

Chicago, June 30.—Wheat—Was weak early but came back later on the expectation that the farm board will make a favorable decision to-morrow in regard to holding wheat. Early news was bearish, combined with free hedging pressure, cables being lower, and Canadian provinces having the best rains of late. A leading Winnipeg house estimated conditions at 57 per cent, a loss from week ago, but said favorable conditions might improve this by 10 per cent. Liverpool closed ¾ to ⅞ lower.

The movement is in full swing southwest and the run is likely to continue heavy while so far there is little export business and flour trading continues moderate. Wide swings in June wheat featured the session, with June here selling up to 77 cents at one time, while June wheat was offered at Kansas City at the same time at 49½ cents.

Some damage to late winter wheat and possibly to spring wheat from premature ripening is indicated. There were some Russian exporters saying the crop promised to be smaller than last year. The market is in a trading area and with hedging pressure heavy bulges probably will be hard to hold for the time being.

Corn—Reacted from the early prices and there was heavy profit taking, but market regained part of the loss toward the close. Crop news did not indicate any serious damage, and most reports indicated weather conditions had been favorable.

Country offerings dropped off sharply, being only 12,000, and shipping sales were larged at 85,000 bushels. Receipts were 162 cars estimated, with primary arrivals 728,000 bushels, against 564,000 bushels a year ago.

The market has advanced too rapidly compared to wheat and the elimination of a big short interest would indicate that barring real crop damage indications, prices are high enough for the time being.

Oats—Rallied from an early dip to some extent, following corn, reports indicate material damage to yield and quality from recent hot wave. Cash demand fair. Receipts eighteen cars estimated. Primary arrivals 112,000 vs. 188,000 a year ago.

Rye—Followed course of wheat. Cash trade quiet.

Logan and Bryan to-day announced the opening of a seasonal branch office in Manoir Richelieu, Murray Bay, Quebec. It will be under the management of Charles de Guise.

This office will be furnished with the usual New York, Montreal and Toronto securities quotations, as well as that of the commodity markets in which the firm's customers are interested.

COPPER PRICE SLIPPING AGAIN

New York, June 30.—Copper is being offered for domestic delivery by some customs smelters at 8⅜c a pound, and some of the metal in speculative hands is reported offered at 8⅛c.

Producers, however, are holding their metal at 9c delivered, the price at which copper was quoted yesterday.

The easier tone resulted partly from reported temporary abandonment of efforts at curtailment of output, and partly from the fact that domestic consumers are covered on their needs for the next few months.

Electrolytic for domestic shipment is quoted at 8¾c to 9c a pound, delivered, and the foreign price holds unchanged at 9.275c, c.i.f., European base ports.

GRAIN EXPORTS

Washington, June 30.—Grain exports last week from the United States amounted to 1,863,000 bushels against 2,460,000 bushels the week before.

Canadian grains exported last week from United States Atlantic ports amounted to 912,000 bushels against 1,276,000 while last week's exports of North American wheat flour were 225,000 barrels against 135,000 barrels the previous week.

NORANDA, NICKEL EASE WITH METALS

Canadian Press

Toronto, June 30.—Softness continued the predominating note on the mining market this afternoon. Noranda lost 1.25 at 19.50. International Nickel and Hudson Bay dropped a quarter apiece and Base Metals and Amulet were a few cents lower.

Lake Shore gained 1.00 on end and Nipissing and McIntyre were up 15 apiece. Teck-Hughes, Hollinger and Dome were down 10 to 30 cents and Wright Hargreaves and Granada lost five each.

FOREIGN BONDS LEAD DECLINE

New York, June 30.—The bond market declined irregularly to-day.

The downward trend was most noticeable among the foreign obligations, presumably of the lack of complete agreement on the Hoover inter-governmental debt proposal.

German 5½s of 1965 and the 6s of 1960 of the German Central Aricultural Bank dropped about 1 point each on fairly active trading. German 7s of 1949 proved less vulnerable.

Among domestic corporate obligations the rails showed less resistance than the industrials and public utilities; although the decline here was general it was mainly fractional. Erie 5s of 1975 was one of the few issues to show losses of about 1 point at times. This bond often fluctuates more sharply than other rails.

Public utility and industrial issues divided their changes about evenly between gains and declines but at times both of them were inclined to recede. The fluctuations among them were principally narrow fractions.

The trend of stock privilege issues was downward and some sizeable losses occurred. Loans of the United States Government lacked a definite trend and trading in most of them continued quiet

Eastern Vessel Has Large Indies Cargo

St. John, June 30.—Heavily laden with the largest cargo yet brought to this port from British Guiana and the West Indies by ships of the line, and an extensive passenger list, the Canadian National Steamship Lady Hawkins, Capt. E. H. Cameron, arrived here Saturday afternoon.

Among the passengers were several from the islands of the West Indies and Bermuda who will holiday in Canada, some having never visited Canada before. An extensive travel has sprung up from the West Indies and Bermuda to Canada of residents of those countries who desire to spend their vacation in Canada since the inauguration of the service by the Canadian National Steamships.

The Lady Hawkins brought a large consignment of sugar, approximately 1,000 tons for St. John and 3,000 tons for Halifax. A large consignment of molasses was also included in the cargo, with cabbages, celery, string beans, tomatoes, citrus fruits and other produce.

VARIED LIST ON LINER IN FROM ORIENT

Ss. President Jefferson Brings Business Men, Missionaries and Others From Far East

There was a cosmopolitan list of passengers aboard the liner President Jefferson when she arrived here this morning from ports across the Pacific. Missionaries, business men, naval officers, and pleasure seekers filled the first-class cabins, while in the steerage were picturesque peoples from various parts of the Far East, all attired in the native costumes of their land. There were Chinese women in black silk trousers, Japanese women in gaily-colored kimonos, and Hindus in the distinctive turbans of their race.

Seven first-class passengers left the liner here. They were Mrs. Z. Watson-Armstrong, wife of the Consul-General for Siam in Canada, returning to Vancouver from a pleasure trip to the Orient; J. Ross Bahrs, missionary printer from Rangoon, Burma, en route across Canada to his home in Austin Minnesota, accompanied by Mrs. Bahrs and three children; W. W. Stark, Oriental representative of British Pens Ltd. returning to Birmingham after a business trip around the world.

The other passengers aboard the liner included Dewey Blankenship, superintendent of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in Sumatra; J. Watanabe, Seattle manager of a Japanese steamship company bound for Seattle to reside; Don Tinling, Oriental traffic manager of the American Mail Line and the Dollar Lines, en route to San Francisco on vacation; Carl E. Rankin professor of Psychology in Lingnan University at Canton, returning to his home in North Carolina for the summer. Mrs. B. C. Grosscup, wife of a prominent Seattle attorney, returning from a pleasure trip to the Orient; Thomas J. O'Hara, retired coal dealer of Chicago returning from a pleasure trip to the Orient with Mrs. O'Hara; E. Hamowy, embroidery merchant of Shanghai and New York, en route to New York City on a business trip; Mrs Winnifred Graves, wife of the United States Vice-consul at Hankow; Dr. Arabella Gault, medical missionary from the Yangtse Valley en route to Ohio for the summer; J. L. B. McCulloch, completing a round-the-world trip before going to Oxford to study law.

Two Ships Collide In New York Harbor

New York, June 30.—The excursion boats Mandalay and Chippewa, carrying approximately 500 and 100 passengers, respectively, collided yesterday near the battery seawall.

The Mandalay, apparently little or not at all damaged, took off the Chippewa's passengers and later proceeded on her cruise to Atlantic Highlands, N.J.

The Chippewa with a hole amidships in her starboard side, was able to reach her pier on Bedloe's Island. She had been carrying sightseers to the Statue of Liberty.

Official inquiries were started to determine the cause of the collision of two vessels on a clear day.

VANCOUVER SHIPPING

Vancouver, June 30—Thomas Honeyman, twenty-five, member of the crew of the Reardon Smith Line freighter Buchaness, was removed to St. Paul's Hospital as soon as the ship berthed on Sunday, and immediately underwent an operation for acute appendicitis. Capt. H. Isaac, master of the vessel, brought the freighter along at full speed in order to get the suffering man to medical attendance as soon as possible.

The vessel is on berth for London, Liverpool and Cardiff.

In an official mariners' notice issued by A. Johnson, Deputy Minister of Marine, announcement is made that the Sandheads lightship has been moved 500 feet northward to mark the entrance to the new channel recently formed at Fraser River mouth.

Empire Shipping Company reports the motorship Mirrabooka at Alberni to-day loading for the Antipodes. She will not visit Vancouver this voyage. The agency also reports Ss. Langleteen in port, loading full with grain at the pool elevator for United Kingdom and continent.

The French Line passenger-freight express liner Ss. Wisconsin arrived at 6 p.m. Sunday to the agency to load 3,000 tons of cargo for European ports.

SEATTLE SHIPPING

Seattle, June 30.—In order that fresh fruits from the Pacific northwest will arrive on European markets on a definite day each week, the joint weekly service of the North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American Line calls for a sailing from here every Tuesday, starting with the Este late in August, officials said yesterday.

Ships of the two lines will sail on alternating Tuesdays and arrive at Bremen and Hamburg every Monday.

Carying gold bullion valued at $50,000 from the Seward peninsula, reindeer carcasses, canned salmon and fifty-two passengers from Rome, St. Michael and Dutch Harbor, the Alaska Steamship Company's liner Victoria arrived here to-day.

FREIGHTER REFLOATED

Three Rivers, Que., June 30.—The Canadian Pacific freighter Beaverburn, which went ashore opposite Cap De La Magdeleine on Saturday during a severe electrical storm, was refloated yesterday.

Foreign Ships Keep Docks Busy To-day

President Jefferson, Delftdyk and Chris Knudsen in This Morning; H. F. Alexander Will Sail This Evening; Many Passengers Aboard Dutch Ship.

Flying the flags of the United States, Norway and Holland, respectively, the American Mail liner President Jefferson, the Holland-America freight and passenger motorship Delftdyk and the freighter Chris Knudsen were at the outer docks this morning, making an unusually busy period from 7 o'clock until noon. The President Jefferson and the Delftdyk docked at the Rithet piers while the Chris Knudsen was at Ogden Point.

The President Jefferson docked at 9 o'clock from ports in the Philippine Islands, China and Japan and proceeded to Seattle at noon. Capt. Alvin O. Lustie, master, reported a fine eleven-day voyage across the north Pacific from Yokohama. The ship had forty-four first class passengers, 115 steerage, 300 tons of general cargo for Victoria, 2,989 tons for Seattle, including a valuable shipment of raw silk and an average amount of mail.

The Delftdyk docked at 7 o'clock and proceeded to Vancouver shortly before noon. She brought in twenty-seven passengers, most of whom hailed from California ports, although the ship was from Rotterdam and London, by way of Bermuda, the Panama Canal, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Capt. J. P. Wepster reported a splendid voyage all the way out. Among the passengers were E. P. R. De Lannoy, Pacific Coast manager of the Holland-America Line from San Francisco, and C. J. Lehman, Los Angeles representative of the company. They had their families and their cars, a nurse and a chauffeur with them and will spend some time in the northwest before returning to California.

Several of the passengers left the liner here. Among those aboard were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Myers and Paul Myers of San Francisco, who also had their car; D. Livingstone, Mrs. D. Livingstone, Miss E. Livingstone, also with their car; Lester Baldwin, Mrs. E. Kenney and two children of London, Mr. and Mrs. Barrington Deacon of Swansea, who disembarked here; Mrs. J. B. Spark and Mrs. R. J. Bruce of London, who proceeded to Vancouver.

From British West Indies ports with sugar and general for Victoria, the Norwegian freighter Chris Knudsen docked at the Ogden Point piers shortly before noon. After completing business here she was posted to clear for Vancouver. The Chris Knudsen was built at Copenhagen in 1925. She is registered at 4,904 tons, has a length of 381 feet, a breadth of fifty-four feet and a depth of twenty-five feet.

Due here this evening is the Pacific Steamship Company's liner H. F. Alexander, on her way from Seattle to San Francisco and Los Angeles. She will arrive at the Rithet piers at 9 o'clock and will proceed south two hours later. While here she will load the cargo left on the docks this morning from the Orient by the President Jefferson. Upon arrival in San Francsico Thursday morning this cargo will be put aboard the Dollar liner President Johnson for the trip through the Panama Canal to New York.

Among the passengers who will board the H. F. here this evening will be Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Miller, Miss Alice Cone, Mrs. Isabel Wilson, Miss M. Saunders, Mrs. H. T. Robertson, Desmond Fitzgerald, Louis H. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Lansen, Walter Tribe, Mrs. F. E. Morris and Albert Morris.

SAN FRANCISCO SHIPPING

San Francisco, June 30.—Strong northwest winds, at times of gale force, retarded northbound shipping along the California coast for the past two days.

The intercoastal liner Pennsylvania which ordinarily can move through any kind of weather at twenty-two knots, was slowed up on her run here from San Pedro, and instead of covering the distance in her scheduled sixteen hours, made it in twenty-one hours.

Nearly all vessels coming up the coast were delayed from five to eleven hours.

The steamship Duchessa d'Aosta, operated by the Libera Line, arrived here yesterday from Mediterranean ports on her second voyage in this service. A new skipper was on the bridge, Captain Marco de Piltieri, formerly in the South American service of the company, replacing Captain Toneitti, who brought the vessel around to this coast on her maiden voyage several months ago.

Two Chinese Unable to Speak Own Language Going to Shanghai to Reside

A Chinese brother and sister, C. W. Ewing Chow and Miss R. Ewing Chow, who cannot speak a word of their own language, will pass through Victoria next week aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia, bound for Shanghai, where they will in future reside. They arrived in St. John, New Brunswick, on Saturday from Demarara, British Guiana, aboard the Canadian National steamer Lady Hawkins.

Mr. Chow and his sister were born in Demarara, and are going to Shanghai to live with relatives, both parents having died in Demarara. Mr. Chow will act as an agent for a prominent oil company in Shanghai. They do not anticipate any very great difficulty in picking up the language. A relative who was in the same predicament was able to make himself understood in about six months. Mr. Chow has a sister who is a graduate nurse of the Oxford Infirmary at Oxford, England, and is now living in the As a brother is a barrister in Shanghai. A brother is a barrister in Shanghai. Both Mr. Chow and his sister are British subjects.

Speaking of the use of oil in China, Mr. Chow said that there is a large demand there for illuminating oil due to the Chinese people having adopted the use of kerosene lamps for lighting purposes. Demarara, Mr. Chow remarked, is a country of immense natural resources. The diamond and gold fields are extensive, he declared, and just recently a large gold nugget was found on the Puruni River. At present there is a slump in the diamond industry, he said, and there is also a falling off in rice production and sugar cane. The extensive forests of hardwood are particularly valuable, he stated, there being extensive stands of greenheart and mahogany.

PARTY OFF TO NORTHERN B.C.

Hope to Collect Specimens For Natural Science Academy at Philadelphia

Edmonton, June 30.—A search for hidden tropical valleys in the mountainous regions of northern British Columbia, where biological and botanical specimens are believed to exist, is the object of an expedition, headed by Dr. J. Norman Henry of Philadelphia, which left here yesterday for the north.

The members of the expedition include Dr. Henry, H. G. McCusker, Canadian government topographer, who has been loaned to the party to chart the region, about which very little is known, and Dr. Benjamin H. Chamblee, who will act as physician. Mrs. Henry is also with the party.

Traveling first to the Peace River country in northern Alberta over Canadian National Railways and then into the Peace River block in British Columbia to Fort St. John, they will join eleven guides headed by Stanley Clarke, outfitter, of Entrance, Alberta. With their pack train they started to-day on a thirty-five-day trek northward to the confluence of the Toad and Liard rivers. The exact geographical spot where this union takes place is not known, but it is in this vicinity that Dr. Henry's party hopes to discover one of the tropical valleys.

Dr. Henry will present any new specimens of fauna and flora to the Academy of Natural Sciences at Philadelphia for exhibition and study. Attempts will also be made to catch a rare fish said to exist in lakes in that region. It is known as "iconita" and is said to live at a depth of 200 feet.

The expedition will take about three months. Five thousand pounds of provisions have already been cached on Prophet River, the half-way mark between Fort St. John and the Liard River. The final destination on the Liard River is more than 800 miles north of Edmonton, Alberta.

The Handsome Man

By Margaret Turnbull

He reached the bridge, clattered across it and up to the terrace. Roberta and Ray were already there. They had passed him when the policeman halted him, they told him, without his observing them. Lady Sandison came running down the terrace steps and grasped him. It was the first time Aggy had hugged him since he was seven, but she had lost nothing by want of practice.

"Oh, my laddie! Did they touch you?"

"Not a touch," Sir George said in what he thought was a truly American manner. "Now, hands off, I must report to the chief."

MacBeth sat in his library, telephone near at hand. He was drawing on a piece of paper and trying to look businesslike, but the hand that held the pencil shook a little, as he saw Sir George in the doorway. Just by so little had this shining young head missed death on this wonderful day in this peaceful countryside and it was he, Robert MacBeth, who had set him on his dangerous way—to save a few miserable thousands.

But that was not the way Sir George looked at it.

"Well, we pulled it off, sir. Chicago wasn't 'in it,' as you say over here. I've had a great day," he concluded, and then hesitated as he saw the expression on Robert MacBeth's face. "I—I did hope you'd be pleased."

"I'm just terribly pleased, but I'm d—d glad it's over. Aggy was in such a stew."

"Oh, you've got to make allowance for Aggy," her stepson said. "She thinks that without her supervision and superintendence the Sandisons would have perished. Maybe she's right, at that," he added, remembering the debt of gratitude the family really owed Aggy. "But she has an awfully aggravating way of acting as though she were still my nurse."

Robert MacBeth laughed.

"But leaving Aggy out of it entirely, sir, as we must, I'll ask you to think of this and discuss it after dinner. Why did the beggars attack the bank to-day and why did they come up the towpath? Was it because the bank robbers in New York got word through that I was there after the money? Or, and this I think the more likely, was it because there was a leak somewhere—here?"

Roberta called cheerfully: "Sir George, Aunt Aggy says not to dress, but come as you are. None of us are dressing to-night."

"Oh, blast!" ejaculated Sir George as he sprang to his feet, "that means I must get some of the soil from my face and hands." He disappeared.

In the cheap Philadelphia restaurant only two men met at their customary table. The waitress asked the older man, who had come in first: "Where's your friends?"

"Ah—" the sound was like a smothered oath, "that is what I should like to know myself."

Jack entered and approached the table. The older man nodded and let him slip into his chair and give an order before he spoke.

"Well?"

Jack shrugged his shoulders. "Well—is it my fault if Paul bungled it? Check up on me! Everything I got was straight. They had the money in the country bank and he did take it to the works. The New York car was a decoy, as I told you. The man who slipped up is Paul."

"They have Paul."

"What! Will he squeal?"

The older man was silent. Then he looked up and asked, "The girl? "Does she suspect you?"

Jack shook his head. "I told her enough about him to keep her from believing anything he says about me."

The older man looked at him grimly. "Eat and come to the office by the back way. We're not done. Since the payroll's lost to us, you must get the cash through the girl."

* * *

Roberta was feeling a little lonely. Here where she used to be first, with her father and those within the house, Sir George seemed to have taken first place away from her. Even the servants watched for him, tried to anticipate his wishes, and as for her aunt and father, why, quite evidently as Aunt Aggy had said, they both looked to him for amusement and excitement. That this was partly her own fault Roberta knew vaguely, but resolutely she insisted to herself that she had been justified, even now when the demands of her newest friend made her feel reluctant and a little fearful.

Jack was growing impatient and insistent. Would she agree or would she not? And how had it come about that Jack held such importance in her life?

She was utterly weary of this island and this life she told herself, and yet at that moment how bright and sparkling the island looked. How lovely the countryside round about!

And where, she thought, would she get two people like her aunt and her father under one roof, ready and willing to do anything for each other and for her? Yes, now that it came to screwing up her courage to take the step that would sever her, maybe forever, from them, with all their faults and errors in their treatment of her, Roberta hesitated. What would it be like to be quite alone in the world with Jack?

"Roberta?" called her aunt's voice from the hall. "Where are you?"

"Here," Roberta answered with a start. "Come to my room, Auntie." She heard her aunt's quick, decided footsteps, then the door opened and she came in.

"Your father's bent on having his young engineers out for the week-end. He wants to talk over his plans with them and have them know Sir George better. He said you would know just what to do, and where to send the invitations. He wants yon Browne, and a man called Arlent, another called McAvoy, two cousins of the same name, Tom and Terry Haughton and an older man, McBurney. He said you were to ask Roger Dunham, too, and just for the afternoon and to stay to supper, he'd like you to ask a few lassies to make it pleasant for the men." Then she hesitated. "Roberta, it would please your father something awful if you would put yourself out a bit for these young men. He takes pride in his daughter, you know." She looked at the girl a little wistfully. "He sets a great store by you, my lass."

Roberta turned abruptly away. Somehow she could not face her aunt, but she said pleasantly enough, "Why, of course, Aunt Aggy, I'll do what I can. But after tea on Sunday," she hesitated and then went on, "I have an engagement, and you'll have to [illegible]."

"You couldn't break it, I suppose? It may be fanciful of me, but I have a kind of feeling that he—Rob I mean—will be disappointed if you are not there. You see the young men will be going Sunday night."

"Oh!" exclaimed Roberta. "They generally stay until Monday morning."

"This time they are all going Sunday night and on Monday there's a jaunt to the construction works, with Sir George driving your father. It'll be your father's first try at going out in a car."

Roberta faced about and looked at her aunt. "Do you—Does Sir George think there is any danger—for father?"

"Well," admitted her aunt, "they say not. I can see, however, that having diddled the robbers so cleverly, it'll maybe make those black-hearted rogues that are left so angry that they're like to get into any mischief they can. At least that's what I think Sir George is anxious about. For the lad's anxious, no matter what they say before me, and he was awful particular that I should tell you."

Roberta's heart contracted with fear and anger combined. Though Aunt Aggy gave her the message in all innocence, Roberta was sure Sir George's intention that she should be told was not so innocent. He was somehow, without any justification as far as she could see, except his fear of what Jack might say against him, determined to throw some sort of slur or suspicion on Jack, if he possibly could. Probably wanted to influence dad against him, and so prevent his believing anything Jack said.

Then quite suddenly she thought of her father's danger. It was a new sensation for Roberta to be afraid for anyone, yet she could not dismiss her fears lightly this time. There had been danger to Sir George, the other day, though she laughed at the idea. She could not bear to think of her father being in any danger when she—

Aunt Aggy's sharp blue eyes softened. This girl did have some feeling, after all. She did care about her father. "Well, I don't know, my dear. I don't really think Rob will do anything for me just now, but," and she eyed the girl eagerly and shrewdly, "there's no telling what he might not do for you, or if not he, there's Sir Geordie."

"Sir George will do nothing for me."

"Well, I'd not be quite as positive of that as you are. You forget, my dear, that you always approach him with a lifted poker, as you might say. Now, if you were to drop the poker and, remembering that he's a poor young man and that you're a rich young woman to whom he cannot exactly be as up and coming as some others—why there's no telling."

"Aunt Aggy," said Roberta, amused in spite of herself and a little exasperated, "are you trying to tell me that I don't know how to interpret Sir George's manner to me? If you are, you may save yourself the pains. He's not only looked things, but he's said things."

"Did he so?" her aunt questioned, her eyes screwing up with mirth. "Well, that's hopeful. There's never a lad would go to the trouble of insulting a good looking lass, unless he wanted to attract her attention." She rose briskly. "I must be off to my ordering. Thank you, my dear."

It was not until her aunt's footsteps were far distant down the stairs that Roberta moved. Then she put her modern head down on her desk and cried in a good old-fashioned way.

"I say, Aggy, when you've time there's no end of a treat in store for you. You should read the different accounts of our little excitement in these odd American papers, especially the country ones. I mean to clip some of them and send them to Havilant and Uncle Charles."

But in the library he forgot to read or clip, for on turning over the pages of one of the papers his eye caught a name he knew. He stared, unable to believe his eyes. There it was, however, under marriage licenses:

"Roberta Jean MacBeth, MacBeth's Island, Pa., and John V. Navarro, Philadelphia, Pa."

Was it just one of Nicaragua Jack's tricks, or did Roberta know and consent? He had been unable to trace any connection between Nicaragua Jack and the bandits captured or at large, and that fact had kept him silent. But now—what was he to do? Hastily he tore the list from the paper and thrust it in his pocket.

CHAPTER XI

The week-end party was in full swing. Roberta moved among a group of men, some of them new, some of them old acquaintances, but all likable. Her father, for the first time since his illness—indeed for the first time since Roberta had flouted his island—was really enjoying himself. Sir George, Roberta told herself jealously, was treated like a favored son. He was gay and charming, and as her Aunt Aggy took care to let her know "looked like one of those old gods."

"My dear aunt," Roberta protested, "you talk of nothing else but Sir George from morning until night."

"It can't be as bad as all that!" her aunt exclaimed, evidently alarmed. "This is the first time I have spoken about Sir Geordie this day. There's something about the way you listen."

"There must be!" declared the maddened Roberta. "I'll take care to change that something, for you may as well know, now as later, that I'm sick of the sound of Sir George's name on your lips."

"Dear, dear! Have I done that for the lad! I'm terrible sorry, Roberta. I wouldn't have had that happen for a great deal. You see, it's only the last few days that I've known how he feels about you, and maybe that's why I have, without meaning to, you might say, been having him on my mind when I look at you."

"How he feels about me? Why, he hates me!" The amazed girl almost shouted it.

"Shish! He says so with his lips maybe. There's an old Gaelic saying that the lips must defend the heart though it is breaking."

"I will say, Aunt Aggy, that a man who can defend his heart as well as Sir George does his will never be in danger of losing or breaking it."

"So you say," returned her aunt shrewdly. "Hearts aren't made of glass, it's true, my lass, but they do break. Not right away, maybe, not dropping down dead as they do in the stories, but nevertheless, they do go off, and for nothing but dead love."

Roberta, who seemed exasperated beyond all need at this conversation, surveyed her aunt with unblinking eyes. "Well, next time you see one dying that way, call me, so that I can come and watch his death struggle."

"I have," said her aunt, "and you'll no believe me."

What could you do with a woman like Aunt Aggy? The idea of trying to make her pity Sir George! Or was it a scheme of Sir George's very own, to keep her from telling her father what she knew! Did he suspect Jack of giving her his true history?

What was she to do? What could she do? She had promised Jack to meet him, and yet at the hour drew near when she must fulfill that promise she grew more and more reluctant. It must be this afternoon or never. That was her feeling as she crossed the terrace to where her father, with Ray Browne, Sir George and the rest of the young men, watched with interest a motor driven by Rober Dunham, filled with girls, coming over the bridge.

Roberta gave Sir George a quick, keen look that might mean almost anything. Involuntarily he followed her down the steps. Since he had read that marriage license announcement he had followed her like a hound on the trail. He could not bring himself to tell MacBeth and expose the girl to anger and ridicule. He meant to make her lead him to Jack Navarro and then he would take matters in his own hand and spare both the girl and her father. They were not married yet, and that announcement might be only one of Jack's tricks to catch the girl. Sir George meant to see that the marriage did not take place. It would be a difficult job, but he would do more than that for good old Robert MacBeth.

Roberta went down the steps slowly, in an agony of indecision, quite unaware that she was being followed. Jack had told her to say nothing to her father about his secretary's past record as he had given it to her, yet curiously enough, she doubted Jack sometimes and was not sure that she doubted her father's secretary.

Ray Browne looked after the girl and Sir George. "I wish he wasn't so good looking," he declared earnestly. "Even Roberta—" and then his jaw dropped, and he stared speechless, as did her father. Sir George, having approached Roberta, had laid his hand lightly on her arm to detain her and she had jerked away from him.

"The lad shows very little tact," said Roberta's father. "It seems to me that Sir George had lost his sense of humor."

He had, for he had had a flash of something, which he always alluded to as "that d—d queer inheritance from my mother's side of the family." It made him sure that Roberta must not be allowed to leave her father's home to-day, alone. Then he had seen the blue car and known that it was Jack. He knew he must follow if he could not stop her now, and very evidently she would not listen. A cold sweat broke out on his forehead as he followed the girl down the path. He dared not leave her, but he cursed the pride and caution that had kept him from taking her father into his confidence.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Funny Noises

(Copyright, 1931, by Howard R. Garis)

Uncle Wiggily with Baby Bunty, the orphan child, and several of his little bunny rabbit girls, was in a rain cabin in the woods. They had gone to the woods to look for adventures, but it had rained and they had made a cute cabin by putting big burdock leaves over a sassafras bush to make a shelter.

Inside the green, leafy cabin Uncle Wiggily and the bunny girls were safe and snug and they listened to the jolly rain drops pelting down on the roof of leaves.

"I'm sure I heard something coming though," whispered Jingle.

"I heard a noise," said Baby Bunty, "but I think it was only the wind or the rain, don't you, Unkie Wig?"

"What's that?" asked Mr. Longears. He was reaching up to stuff some moss in a hole in the leaf roof through which a little rain was dropping. "Excuse me, I didn't hear what you said," he went on.

"We heard a noise," said Jingle, "and we think it is something coming—maybe the Fox or the Bob Cat!"

"Oh, dear! I hope nothing like that happens," said Uncle Wiggily as he finished fixing the leaky roof of the rain cabin. "Nurse Jane will say it is bad enough for me to have you children out in the rain. But if the Fox or Bob Cat comes snooping around that will be so much worse. I certainly hope nothing like that happens."

"I'm not sure it was anything like that coming," said Jingle. "But I heard a funny noise."

"I did, too," spoke Bunty and the others said the same.

"Perhaps I made the noise stuffing some moss in the roof so the rain wouldn't drip in," said Mr. Longears.

"No," Jingle answered, "I heard the noise before you started to fix the roof. Listen! There it is again!"

They all listened and they heard outside the little cabin a sound like clip clop, clap clip.

"It's the rain dropping on the tree leaves!" said Jangle.

"No, it sounds like some one walking," whispered Bunty. "I'm going to take a look!" The little orphan rabbit found a peep hole in the side of the sassafras bush but she had no sooner looked out than she exclaimed: "Oh, it is! It is! Really it is, Unkie Wig!"

"What is?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"It's the Bob Cat and the Fox walking right this way!" whispered Baby Bunty. "Oh, it is, really! Look!"

So Uncle Wiggily looked and all the little bunny girls looked and, surely enough, there was the Bob Cat and there was the Fox walking toward the rain cabin.

"Look there" mewed the Bob Cat to the Fox so they could all hear him "Did you ever see that before?"

"What?" snarled the Fox.

"That little green bower," went on the Bob Cat, pointing one paw at the rain cabin Uncle Wiggily had made. "I'm sure it was never in our woods before. It must have been made since this morning for I was here then and it wasn't here! Maybe there's something good to eat inside."

"Maybe," agreed the Fox. "Let's take a look." The two walked closer to the rain cabin and Jingle whispered:

"Oh, Daddicums! What are we going to do? They'll catch us!"

"No they won't! Leave it to me," whispered the rabbit gentleman. "I am going to make some funny noises and fool those bad chaps." So Uncle Wiggily began to croak like a frog.

"Oh, fiddlesticks!" mewed the Bob Cat. "Nothing in that leafy bower but a frog. Some frogs must have built that shelter. I don't like frogs. Come on, we'll go look for Uncle Wiggily."

"I don't like frogs, either," snarled the Fox. "But I want to be sure there are frogs inside. I'll take a look."

"Oh, Unkie Wig! What shall we do?" gasped Bunty as the Fox came nearer.

"Leave it to me! I'll make another funny noise," whispered Uncle Wiggily. So he began to buzz like a bee!

"Oh, trolley cars!" snapped the Fox "Only bees in that bower. I don't like bees. They sting. Come on!"

"Bees!" howled the Bob Cat, "don't be silly, there are frogs in there!"

"Nonsense, I guess I know a bee's buzz when I heard it!" marked the Fox. "You're getting deaf!" Uncle Wiggily laughed, croaked like a frog again and then buzzed like a bee and then he hummed like a mosquito and when the Fox and the Bob Cat heard these funny noises coming out of the rain cabin they became frightened and away they ran as far as they could go. Then Uncle Wiggily and the bunnies laughed and soon the rain was over so they could go back home and tell Nurse Jane all about it.

RELIEF FUND MAY BE $25,000,000 DECLARES REPORT

Toronto, June 20. — The Toronto Globe this morning published the following dispatch from its correspondent in Ottawa:

"An emergency relief fund of $25,000,000 or more to take care of unemployment and distress throughout the Dominion next winter may be asked for by the Prime Minister before Parliament prorogues.

"The more serious aspects of the situation were disclosed to the Federal Cabinet yesterday when Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, returned to Ottawa from a first-hand survey of conditions in the western provinces. Senator Robertson addressed the Cabinet for more than an hour.

"Many western members of Parliament, who are in close touch with conditions at home, declare the situation in their respective constituencies will be worse next winter than it was during the past winter, as most of the farmers exhausted their slender savings in keeping the wolf from the door last winter.

"Senator Robertson reported unemployment was widespread and serious in all the large centres of population, including Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

"The relief measures to be adopted by the government will be announced in the House by Premier Bennett."

Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, JULY 1, 1931

Astrologers read this as a rather an uncertain day. It is a time to avoid speculation and may cause pessimism regarding financial matters.

The early morning hours may not be altogether satisfactory to merchants, for trade may be dull, but the holiday spirit and not the stars are to be blamed principally.

Under this planetary government there may be certain destructive forces evident and all discouraging comments should be avoided.

While this configuration prevails there should be increased activity among builders, contractors and other progressive workers.

There is a sign of promise to-day for writers of every sort and especially for those who are interested in advertising.

Newspapers and magazines should profit at this time when subjects of supreme interest may be discussed.

The influence of the recent conjunction of Mars and Neptune may produce many serious troubles, it is foretold.

Labor troubles of various sorts may be expected, the seers prophesy, and the autumn may bring new industrial problems in many countries.

Some mystery of the sea is to occupy much space in the newspapers before the end of the month, according to a forecast.

Ireland is to be the scene of some sort of political sensation, if the stars are rightly read.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of important business transactions. Disputes involving legacies may disturb a number of men.

Children born on this day probably will be studious, ambitious and able to succeed. Many scientists belong to this sign of Cancer.

Sir Robert Bell, noted as an astronomer, was born on this day, 1840. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Louis Joseph Vendome, 1654, French general; Count Jean Baptiste Roshambeau, 1725, French general.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE— —By AHERN

OUT OUR WAY— —By WILLIAMS

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband says that he only cares for me as he would a dear friend and that he has never loved me in any other way since we have been married. He also says that there is no other woman that he cares for any more than he does for me. I asked him to be granted a separation, and he said "No." We have a two-year-old baby, to which we are both devoted. Now what shall I do? Would you leave him or stay and tough it out?

A. B.

Answer—I would stay. You have too good a chance to win out to throw down your hand and quit at this stage of the game. Especially as you have that baby fighting on your side.

Suppose your husband does love you only as a dear friend? Why, that is what marriage settles down to with every couple by the time they have been married a few years. All of the palpitations and thrills pass away with courtship. The romance fails under the glare of everyday humdrum domestic life.

The husband does not express his love for his wife by bringing her orchids. He fetches home the bacon. The wife does not seek to make herself alluring to her husband by arts and wiles. She pleases him by getting him a good dinner. Husbands and wives do not spend their time billing and cooing and making love to each other. They show their affection by doing their duty and trying to make each other happy.

Courtship is one thing. Married life is another. No couple could keep up the high-pressure sentimentalism of courtship year after year any more than they could live on an exclusive diet of chocolate eclairs. It would nauseate them and they would cry out for plain bread and butter and roast beef, medium rare. And that is what marriage is, where a man and woman just settle down to the business of life and being kind and good to each other and not talking much about their feelings.

Happy, then, the wife whose husband still regards her as a dear friend. Who shows that he finds her companionable and sympathetic and understanding and trustworthy—one with whom he can talk over things, whose advice he respects and of whose loyalty he is assured. I would trust that kind of affection to endure a lot longer than the one that was made up of hectic thrills and chills and ague stuff.

So, my advice to you, Mrs. A. B., is to take the goods the gods provide and thank heaven for what you have instead of worrying over something you have missed. In its best sense ours is a "companionate marriage," and when a woman can say Friend Husband she is indeed a lucky wife.

Make your husband a good home. Make him comfortable. Drive with a light hand. Give him plenty of liberty and don't nag. Don't even discuss with him the state of his affections or the possibility of a separation. If you do this you will find that the friendship between you will grow stronger and stronger year by year, for friendship is made up of common experiences, of joys and sorrows that we have endured together, of memories that we have in common and of battles that we have fought out shoulder to shoulder.

That is why we cling to old friends and why new friends can never take their place. Perhaps your husband will never really fall in love with you in a romantic way. Most likely he is not of a romantic temperament and is as incapable of the grand passion as he is of singing in opera. But so long as he gives you his friendship you can do without the romance.

* * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Should a mother-in-law live with her daughter-in-law when she has daughters of her own?

X. Y. Z.

Answer—A mother-in-law should never live with either a daughter-in-law or a son-in-law unless it is an absolute necessity or unless her in-laws are so anxious to have her that they consider her presence under their roofs a benediction instead of a penance and urge her to make her home with them.

Fortunately, there are such instances, and I have known women whose in-laws loved them as if they had been their own mothers and who were welcome guests in their in-laws' houses. Such instances are, alas, rare. Few old women can avoid making pests of themselves by trying to boss everything about them and tendering unsought advice and suggestions. Nor are there many old women who are tactful and diplomatic in dealing with their in-laws.

Neither are there many daughters-in-law or sons-in-law who want any third party in their houses, nor who are pitiful and patient with the whims and vagaries of age. So, because the mother-in-law in the house is nearly always a cause of dissension and strife between husbands and wives, I think it is far, far better for women not to try to live with their children after they are [illegible].

But in case it has to be done, in case the mother is financially dependent upon her children and they cannot afford to make her an allowance that will enable her to have her own little home or to board somewhere, it is certainly best as much the son's place to take care of her as it is the daughter's.

There is no more reason why daughter-in-law shouldn't do her bit than there is why son-in-law shouldn't do his. The fair thing is for each child to do his or her share in taking care of mother and this divides it out so that it is hard on none.

But when you rebel so bitterly, X. Y. Z., against having your husband's mother with you in her old age, try to put yourself in her place, for it may be your fate when you are old to be dependent upon your children. How will you like like it, then, if your daughter-in-law makes you feel that you are a burden and an unwelcome guest and that your seat is your son's fire and at his table is begrudged to you?

Once I was camping out in the Sahara Desert and one night the story-teller about the fire told this tale:

'Once upon a time there was an old man who came to his son and said: 'When you were a child I carried you in my arms, I warmed you at my breast, I fed you and clothed you. Now I am old and helpless and I ask you to do for me what I did for you when you were young and helpless.' So the son took his father into his house and comforted him, but the son's wife nagged at her husband to send his father away until she made him turn the old man out of doors. But at the last moment the son's conscience smote him, and he said to his little boy: 'Go get the blanket with which we cover the ass so the old man may have something to wrap about him, for the nights are cold in the desert.'

"FIRE-EATERS"

It is no fun to swallow something hot. I found that out one day when I was making ready to start on a mountain-climbing trip in the Rockies.

It was about 1 o'clock in the morning, and I had been awakened from a sound sleep. Members of the party were served with corn-meal mush. Being half-asleep, I was not so careful as I should have been, and swallowed some of the mush when it was cool only on the surface.

Don't ever do that! I never want to do it again! My throat pained me for four or five hours.

If a little hot corn-meal can be so painful, what about those who take flaming substances into their mouths and are known as "fire-eaters?"

Now and then—at a carnival, fair or circus—we enter a tent where a fire-eater is waiting to perform his stunts.

If we can believe our eyes, the fire-eater swallows burning oil and takes glowing coals into his mouth. He dips into molten metal and places a spoonful on his tongue!

We may wonder whether he had a cast-iron mouth.

In the first place, he takes pains never to draw in his breath while fire is near his mouth or nose. Fire taken into the lungs would be fatal.

Before the performance starts, the performer coats the lining of his mouth with soap, ointment or a chemical. An ointment made from soap mixed with alum gives good protection. Liquid storax may be added, and is sometimes used alone.

When the fire-eater does his burning-oil trick, he dips up only a small amount of the oil. He blows out the flame just as he is making ready to put the spoon in his mouth. He does not swallow the oil until it has cooled off.

I shall tell you further secrets of the fire-eater's art in a Saturday Talk to be published at an early date. In the meantime, do not imitate such stunts! Even a professional fire-eater is sometimes badly burned.

NEW AID FOR TRANSIENTS IN TERMINAL CITY

Council Discusses Plight of Jobless; Federal-Provincial Steps Awaited

Vancouver, June 30.—Denizens of Vancouver's "jungles" are living under conditions as healthful as boarding houses, the city council was informed yesterday afternoon in a report submitted by Dr. J. W. McIntosh, medical health officer.

Conditions in the "jungles" were again threshed out in a full-dress debate, when four representatives of the women's branch of the Independent Labor Party appeared before the aldermen and protested against the situation there.

RELIEF WORKS

Alderman W. Deptford, supporting suggestions shelter should be secured for the men living in the "jungles," was countered by Alderman Atherton, who declared he had been advised by Rev. A. Boddan, who had been helping the men, to leave them in the "jungles" until such time as relief work should be opened up or some definite scheme should be prepared by federal and provincial governments for the aid of transients.

MUCH ALREADY ACHIEVED

Mayor L. D. Taylor and Alderman W. C. Atherton, chairman of the relief committee, were strong defenders of the council's action in dealing with the whole unemployment situation, the Mayor stressing the Vancouver council had done more for the jobless than possibly any other city in Canada.

NEW ARRIVALS

Alderman Atherton said the men in the "jungles" would have to remain there only a short time, until the new transient scheme should become operative. Giving figures of additional men who had arrived in Vancouver, attracted by this new policy, Alderman Atherton said 135 men had arrived on the C.P.R., sixty on the C.N.R., and fifty men who had been camped at Coquitlam had now arrived in the city. He declared the city could do nothing definite until definite data had been secured from the governments regarding the new transient aid scheme.

Alderman Atherton declared that if the city immediately undertook to feed all the jobless, there would be 10,000 here within three weeks. He pointed out it would cost $30,000 a month to feed and shelter 5,000 men. A total of $383,000 had been spent, said Alderman Atherton, leaving only $166,000 available for the balance of the year.

MAYOR CONTRIBUTES

"There is not a week," said Mayor Taylor, "that I do not go down into my pocket. And at the end of the month I had none of my salary left."

Mayor Taylor, in answering the protests of the four women in the delegation, said men were flocking into the city from all parts of the province. He said 150 additional men had arrived in Vancouver Monday. Vancouver, said the Mayor, had spent $1,250,000 to help the jobless in the last year, and the city could not find any more money for the work. It had become a task for the federal government, the Mayor declared.

HEALTH MEASURES

A report was submitted by Dr. McIntosh, reviewing health conditions in the "jungles" at Campbell Avenue and under the Georgia Viaduct. Dr. McIntosh said the Great Northern Railway had been informed of conditions, and asked to take steps to comply with health regulations.

Mayor Taylor, commenting on negotiations with Victoria, said he had been informed British Columbia public works, to relieve unemployment, would probably be started within ten days. Premier Tolmie, said the Mayor, had forwarded his plans to Ottawa, and he expected to hear from the federal government within ten days.

BUSY YEAR FOR FARMER GROUPS

Activities Reviewed By Superintendent in Report to Minister

There are 189 farmers' groups in British Columbia with a membership of 7,291 members, W. J. Bonavia, superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, states in a report to Hon. William Atkinson Minister of Agriculture.

About half of the total membership is on Vancouver Island and the lower mainland. The Vancouver Island institutes have a membership of 1,151.

Gopher killing competitions, seed fairs, ploughing matches and distribution of pure bred sires are among the activities listed. Two thousand gophers were destroyed in the North Thompson River district. Ploughing matches were held at South Saanich, Midway, Rolla Matsqui, Comox, North Okanagan and Cowichan.

Forty-four bulls, twenty-five rams and five boars were among the pure-bred sires distributed.

Extensive land clearing operations are reported.

TREASURY OF U.S. CLOSES ITS YEAR WITH BIG DEFICIT

Associated Press

Washington, June 30.—A financial rainbow that had lasted ten years faded rapidly yesterday evening for the United States Government.

Despite a half billion dollars in ready cash, the Treasury reached the eve of the last day of the 1931 fiscal year with expenditures apparently topping collections by over $800,000,000.

The last year to close with a deficit was more than a decade ago.

Receipts for the year were $3,298,833,366 and expenditures $4,157,112,224. The net balance in the general fund was $502,438,034.

Whether any of the cash balance on hand would be applied to reducing the deficit no official would say, but it has been the custom in the past to carry over a comfortable balance to meet expenditures until the September 15 tax collections are received. Last year the balance carried over was $400,000,000, but then there was a surplus of $185,000,000.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR ENDED

Reports of University School Activities Show Steady Improvement in All Sections

One of the most successful years in the history of the institution had been enjoyed during the 1930-31 terms at University School, Major Ivan Simpson, M.C., M.A., headmaster, told the assembly at the closing exercises in the school yesterday. Reports read outlined the activities of boys during the year, and were especially warm in their commendation of the development of the cricket team.

J. H. Beatty, M.P.P., president of the school, presented prizes and colors won by the students since the sports day on June 3.

A brief report on the rugby activities of the school stated four teams had been formed during the season as well as two soccer elevens.

In cricket the institution had been able to defeat all Island schools it had met, and had held its own against the men's teams of the city, winning and losing four matches. J. Weaver and E. C. Hamber, captain and vice-captain, who had both scored centuries during the season, were the outstanding boys in this branch of sport, which had been coached by W. R. G. Wenman and Eric Quainton.

Cadet training and indoor shooting had also proved exceptionally successful, as had swimming and diving.

The tennis, radio club, magazine work, academic work, health, track, fort and debating society activities were also sketched.

DEPRESSION

"I'm a Different Woman"

"Two years ago I began to get depressed, and everything was too much trouble for me. I was a misery to myself and everyone around me. I was advised to take Glauber Salts by my friends, who said it was the same as Kruschen, but it did me no good, so at last my husband got me a bottle of Kruschen and no one would realize the different woman I am. I have been taking Kruschen now constantly for two years. My daughter also would not be without it. I have got my neighbor to take Kruschen as well, and she has found its worth, as she feels a different woman."

—(Mrs. G. A. K.)

The commonest cause of depression is partial constipation — an insidious complaint, because the sufferer is seldom aware of it. It means the gradual accumulation of body poisons, which dull the mind, damp the spirits, sap the nervous strength and lower the whole vitality.

Kruschen Salts make constipation impossible. Therefore, if you keep to Kruschen you need never know the meaning of melancholy; never feel "nervy" or depressed.

As a matter of fact, there is more heat at less cost in all three of these Island coals, than in any other fuel you can buy. Any combustion engineer will prove their economy for either kitchen range or furnace.

There is a big difference between these coals and other grades on this market. It's the little B.T.U.'s that count.

POPPY HARVEST IN CHINA STATED BELOW AVERAGE

Nanking, China, June 30.—While Chinese government authorities are seeking a solution of the opium problem in China, thousands of poppy fields are being harvested in Anhwei province, less than 100 miles from the capital.

Opium of the richest agricultural province in Central China, Anhwei for many years has helped to supply opium. Hundreds of tons of the narcotic are shipped annually from this region to Shanghai, Nanking, Hangchow and other large cities within a radius of 500 miles.

After the opium is harvested, it becomes the centre of a whirlwind of political turmoil. Local bandits and officials as well, demand as much as 50 per cent of the value of the crop before it is sold by the farmers. Then the provincial tax also must be paid.

The anti-opium suppression commission has announced an effort is to be made to improve Anhwei's political situation. Exceptionally heavy rains this year are reported to have ruined a large percentage of the opium crop and this, together with increasing taxes, will mean high prices for the drug in Shanghai this fall.
